Lancaster Farming

Vol. 44 No. 43 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, August 28, 1999 | $31.00 Per Year | 60¢ Per Copy

Farmers started to cut tobacco already last week, as the dry weather brought the crop to early maturity. John Yocum, extension director at Penn State's Manheim field research lab., said the crop will be better than expected. The recent rains have helped to add weight to the leaves, and the dry weather made blue mold almost non-existent. While the crop varies from farm to farm, Yocum estimated that the crop will be 70 to 80 percent of normal. The market is still speculative, and some farmers have crops from the past two years in the barns. Acreage is down and if we have another bad market year, the number of acres will see another sharp decline for next year. On the other side of the market picture, some farmers with good clean Pennsylvania type tobacco sold for really good prices. This may be why some new tobacco sheds were built in the southern end of the county.

Overall, the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service reported improved conditions for soybeans and corn statewide due to rains last week. But the crop remains short, and many farmers are already feeding winter supplies to their cattle. Fruit harvest is about the normal pace for this time of year. Statewide, apple condition improved due to significant rainfall. Growers reported that their fruit was of good quality but small in size. Vegetable growers continued to report low yields and great crop loss.

Drought-Year Feed Dangers Under Scrutiny At First Silage, Forage Expo

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Drought year dangers that dairy and other livestock managers should be keenly aware of were under discussion here Wednesday at the first Penn State-sponsored Silage and Forage Expo conducted at the Glenn Krall and family dairy farm.

While herd managers are looking for ways to maximize silages and forages in a drought disaster, take heed: silage nutritional value can be saved. So can forages if the proper management techniques are adopted now.

About 83 silage and forage producers and agri-industry representatives attended the Expo. Several Penn State crop experts were on hand to present strategies to successfully manage crops in a drought disaster that has drastically affected many counties in the southeastern Pennsylvania region.

To get more out of silage, according to Dr. David Wolfgang, director of field investigations for the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System and Penn State dairy specialist, "chop it finer and make it wetter," he said. Wolfgang reviewed the strategies for dairy nutrition in Krall's farm site feed room next to the TMR mixer.

"Chop silage more finely this year and a little more on the wet side," Wolfgang told producers. This year, the dairy specialist indicated, could present a challenge to "make diets that complement the rumen."

Of course, different feeds are maintained for different age animals on the dairy. With the dry conditions persistent throughout the summer, the results will be a high-lignin, high-cellulose corn silage. As a result, producers should take time to chop the silage finer and provide more "ends" for digestion.

More grain can also be fed to supply the high energy needs of lactating animals, but producers should consider by-products, such as beet pulp, citrus pulp, apple pomace, and other items.

Producers also have to worry about nitrate in corn. After sitting near dormant, the corn crop takes up a surge of nitrogen after a rain, which becomes nitrates in the crop. Nitrates, converted to nitrites by the rumen, can result in cow abortions and even death.

Wolfgang said silage samples from Lancaster County are testing high in nitrates, from 1.3 to 1.7 percent. "We like corn silage to be 1 percent or less," Wolfgang said. He noted that early chopped corn can run high in nitrates.

Wolfgang noted that livestock being fed high-nitrate silage can digest the material and can be used safely only if fed at extremely small percentages. If used in heavy concentrations, all at once, livestock can be poisoned.

Poisoning can result in abortions in adult cattle and, in some cases, death. In beef cattle, if the silage isn't mixed with grain, nitrates can prove toxic.

And the nitrates can be concentrated in certain sections. If using thick plastic wrap bags, there is "variability in where the hot spots are," said Wolfgang, compared to a silo or trench/bunker system.

If silage is the only thing that is fed, without hay or alternative feedstuffs (not forage extenders), the mono-diet "may even kill it, or certainly cause abortion," he said.

The decision is out on whether or not to use additives to silage, including bacteria or acids, in a drought year. There are a lot of factors and variables that need to be considered, and opinions vary.

Regardless, it is important to feed that rumen "24 hours a day," said the dairy specialist.

Silage feeders should also check high pHs in feed, using a test strip, to ensure they don't go over a pH of 5, to prevent botulism.

With the dry weather followed by rain in many parts of the state, the nitrates in corn silage "are higher today than two weeks ago," said Paul Craig, regional forage specialist. Forage testing will be critical in this drought year, Craig told those at the field day.

Penn State's Animal/Dairy Science Dept. Conducts Special-Fed Veal Research

PROFESSOR EMERITUS OF ANIMAL SCIENCE

The special-fed veal industry is the subject of perhaps more widespread public criticism and question than any other farm animal production enterprise, both in the United States and internationally. The reasons for these criticisms include: (1) veal systems use young animals which tends to stimulate an emotional response; (2) some aspects of the system are unique (such as use of individual stalls, liquid diets, lower hemoglobin levels than in calves of similar age on grain and pasture); and (3) the US veal industry is newer and smaller than most other farm animal industries.

Bull calves born on dairy farms can be used for meat production in several different ways: (1) bob veal with live weight less than 150 pounds; (2)

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold steady with late sales turning weak. Despite the large offering, supply was not nearly as attractive as usual and that may have stunted the market's potential. A good run of Holstein steers sold fully .50 higher and a light, but nice, offering of slaughter heifers traded steady to .50 higher. Slaughter cow trading was active and prices ranged firm to 1.00 higher. Slaughter bulls sold .50-1.00 higher. Supply included 45 percent slaughter steers and 31 percent cows.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids gained some ground after yesterday's declines. Light overnight export wheat sales and higher corn bids gave wheat bids a boost. Corn and soybean bids were stronger on good export interest and some short coverings on the Board. Wheat steady to 4 cents higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 6 cents higher. Soybeans 8 to 11 cents higher. South Korea's overnight wheat purchase offered wheat some support. However, improved harvest weather and good yields being reported, limited gains. Corn moved slightly higher on indications Japan bought some U.S. corn overnight, around four million bushels, but nothing has been confirmed. Also supporting corn bids were reports the Chinese crop is at 120 and 124 million metric tons which is below the 128 mmt being used by USDA Sharp advances were seen in soybean bids on fund buying amid improved Chinese and Indian interest in oilseeds and products. Some rainfall in the Eastern Corn Belt is expected to add some late bushels to the crop. However, some areas in the Delta are still dry and crop condition ratings could still be lowered.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

AUG. 30-SEPT. 5, 1999

GREAT FIRE OF LONDON, SEPT. 2, 1666.

SCHOOL DAYS

Maria Montessori, born on August 31, 1870, became the first female graduate of the University of Rome Medical School When she was assigned a group of eight-year-old students who had been labeled "slow," Dr Montessori soon had them outperforming normal test scores. She later turned her attentions to teaching three- to six-year-old children from the slums to read Before long, she had translated her "scientific method of teaching" into a plan that could be adopted by other teachers The Montessori school movement was successful and popular, and continues today as a respected method for educating children

Children, like animals, use all their senses to discover the world. - Eudora Welty

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

The south wind warms the aged.

A wet August never brings dearth.

As September, so the coming March.

OPINION

An Enemy Of The State

In the movies, government agents track and trace ordinary citizens by secretly using cutting edge electronics. Now according to the Washington Post as reported on ZDNet, the government wants permission to do such things for real.

The U.S. Department of Justice wants the right to break into your home and without your knowledge disable the security precautions on your computer. Then it can track and trace everything you do.

Right now, the effort exists as draft legislation for a "Cyberspace Electronic Security Act." According to Jesse Berst, editorial director at ZDNet's AnchorDesk, this legislation would extend the concept of hidden listening devices, a legal but rarely used surveillance technique to computers.

We need a strong, capable Justice Department. And computers have made it easier for criminals to elude law enforcement. If we don't find ways to protect society against computer-aided crime, we're all in trouble.

However, to give the government the right to spy on ordinary citizens in this way, is a terrifying thought. We would have to be convinced that every single government official is a sincere, ethical individual who would never step over the boundaries, no matter what the temptation. We have many politicians who are sincere, ethical individuals. But for many in government, from the president on down, withstanding temptation doesn't seem to be their strong suit.

Since the land-grant university system closely associated with agriculture was one of the first to convey research information through the Internet, and because both agribusiness and individual farmers are moving fast to the Internet for information transfer, we think this potential invasion of privacy is quite relevant to our readers.

To us, this seems like an underhanded way to make everyone an enemy of the state.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Manage Beef Herds During Drought

Beef herds may be severely affected by drought at this time of tear, according to Dr. John Comerford, Penn State Animal Scientist. Beef producers need to consider certain management practices during drought and short feed supply. Make sure plenty of fresh water is available at all times to the herd. Provide correct mineral supplementation for the cow herd. Salt, calcium and phosphorus will be the most important.

Consider weaning the oldest calves immediately. Weaning calves takes the pressure off depleted pastures. About one pound of a soybean meal equivalent protein supplement will be needed for calves of this age. Cows with weaned calves also will need energy and a little protein at this time. Their lactation is about over, but they need energy to cycle in time to be re-breed for next year.

To Supplement Feed to Beef

Dr. John Comerford, Penn State Animal Scientist, states you determine the amount of energy supplement needed by the availability of pasture or the energy value of stored forages. Corn is relatively cheap right now as a source of energy for both cows and calves. Supplementing poor quality forages with corn may be the most economical feed for cows whose calves have been weaned or for calves that have no pasture available. Calves may be removed from pasture but will need daily about one per cent of their body weight of a grain and hay mix to maintain comparable growth rates to nursing cows on pasture. When it does rain, rotate the cows on pasture as much as possible to take advantage of available grass.

To Monitor Beef Reproduction

According to Dr. John Comerford, Penn State Animal Scientist, droughts can hamper a beef herd's reproductive efficiency due to a combination of high temperatures and lack of rain fall during the prime breeding season for spring calving cows. It would not hurt to have a few extra bulls on hand. Yearling bulls could become overtaxed with more than 15 cows in the breeding group under drought conditions. That figure rises to 25 cows for a two rear old bull and 30 to 35 cows for a mature bull. Semen content and quality may be affected by this kind of weather. This may mean extended calving seasons and delayed rebreeding. Check the cow herd for pregnancy 60 to 75 days after the breeding season to determine how severe the weather affected breeding. It is possible that fewer cows than normal will be bred, so you will have to decide early whether to winter non-productive cows.

Background Scripture:
Genesis 42 through 45
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 105:7-22

When Joseph's brothers threw him into a pit and then sold him into slavery, it must have felt good — for a while. To be rid of that spoiled brat, to humiliate that pompous know-it-all must have relieved — at least temporarily — the terrible heartburn of anger, jealousy and resentment he evoked in them. Now, with Joseph out of the way, their father Jacob would be able to treat them equally and fairly once again. Many people who commit violent acts feel a sense of relief once the deed is done — initially, anyway.

We don't know how long that satisfaction stayed with the brothers of Joseph, but I suspect not very long. They probably assumed that, after a reasonable period of mourning, their father would get on with their family life. But they had miscalculated just how much and how long Jacob would grieve. Years passed and Jacob's wounds of grief never healed. One suspects that it was the inconsolable grief of their father that first caused the brothers to realize that the satisfaction the deed brought them was very short-lived.

When I was in college I acted in a production of "Romeo and Juliet," the story, not only of two lovers, but of two large clans of haters. If a Capulet was killed by a Montague, a Montague would have to be killed by a Capulet. Why? For the sake of "family honor." Each time an enemy was killed it brought a temporary sense of honor redeemed. But in "Romeo and Juliet" as in life today, the feeling that one's honor has been reclaimed is doomed to be of short duration unless someone on either side can break the vicious cycle of retaliation. The compulsion to pay someone back is hard to overcome.

BEYOND RETALIATION

Joseph's brothers felt compelled to get even with him for the contentious situation he and their father had caused in the family. Joseph might have felt that what is brothers had done to him called for retaliation, too. Retaliation in each case is understandable, although, to be honest, it would be more understandable in Joseph's case than in that of the brothers. But, whatever satisfaction retaliation may bring, there is a much higher satisfaction that retaliation can not even come close to giving us — reconciliation.

If, at the time the brothers sold him into slavery, someone had counseled reconciliation with their brother, they most certainly would not have considered it. As it was, they did not even want to listen to the moderating voices of Reuben and Judah. Similarly, if at the time Joseph found himself bound in slavery, someone had called upon him to be reconciled to his brothers, he might well have refused even to consider it.

Between the day of the crime of his brothers and the day when they unknowingly come before him in Egypt, there is obviously a passage of time. The writer does not tell us how long, but we may assume several years, perhaps even a decade. There has been at least a substantial interval of time and so we need to see whether the passage of time has produced any changes.

NO CHEAP GRACE

If you read chapters 42 through 45, you will see that Joseph did not immediately offer his hand in reconciliation to his brothers. He tests them, plays with their consciences, to see if there is any remorse for what they did to him. If there is to be a reconciliation it will not be a cheap grace! When Judah offers to substitute himself for Benjamin as a hostage, Joseph is deeply moved. When he tells Joseph, "I fear to see the evil that would come upon my father," he realizes that Judah is concerned, not about himself, but their father, Jacob.

Can you imagine the shock that must have hit them when Joseph says to them, "I am Joseph; is my father still alive?" He could have followed that revelation with a command to the Egyptians to kill his brothers or put them into slavery as they had enslaved him. He certainly had the power to pay them back.

But, Joseph realized that however, good that might feel at the moment, there was a possibility that was much better. So, he says: "Come near to me, I pray you . . . I am your brother Joseph whom you sold into Egypt. And now do not be distressed, or angry with yourselves, because you sold me here; for God sent me before you to preserve life."

Retaliation might be sweet, but reconciliation is immeasurably best of all.

Dairyman Adopts Health Benefits Inherent In Grazing

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LOYSVILLE (Perry Co) — Before the year that changed everything for Perry County dairyman Duane Hertzler — 1994 — his herd experienced health problems

Cows were on concrete Hoof problems were critical

The cows were having trouble with feed

But by working with a nutritionist, a seasonal plan for feeding was put in place

And Hertzler looked at some of the things successful farmer/grazers were doing, trying to find an answer to his herd health problems.

With the changes in place, the following year began to pay off

Because of the soil type and terrain, and the fact that during a drought year they get hard hit because of the Duf field limestone and shale combination, an area marked by shale ridges, corn didn t do as well

When it was dry, corn for silage was almost nonexistent

They found out that grazing, for the land they had to deal with, could be the solution

Getting the cattle off the concrete and into the newly sown pastures proved better, according to Duane Culling rate was 43 percent in 1993 and dropped the next year to 32 per cent In the best year since the changeover, culling dropped to 24 percent

And with soil conditions, a little bit of rain provided swift rejuvenation of the pastures on the farm

For his work Hertzler was awarded the past winter with the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council Outstanding Producer Award at the council's annual awards and educational conference in Grantville

Hertzler owns three farms on his Moo-Echo Dairy in Perry County, that includes 315 acres He rents additional

In addition to the corn for grazing, Hawley also planted a mixture of turnips and kale that will be grazed later this fall. He says he takes the "salad approach" to feeding his cattle. Farmers who would like to see how the new crops fit into a grazing program can come to the Hawley farm on Aug. 27 from 10-noon for a pasture walk. See story page 12. Photo by Carolyn Meyer

PASTURE PONDERINGS

Duane E. Pysher
Grassland Management Specialist
Natural Resources
Conservation Service

Last time I talked with you I was discussing the rain — and when I think about it that was probably the last significant rain we received What a difference we are seeing out there today It looks like August already

The natural question comes up How do you handle this situation in a grazing system? '

There are several things to consider when dealing with drought conditions in a grazing system and I will discuss them

Drought and its effect on a grazing system is not so different than what is occurring in a conventional farming system When you think about it corn soybeans and the pasture as well as most of the crops are all drought stressed The difference between the grazing and conventional systems lies within the management system

When the forages have slowed down in their regrowth, we need to consider the management that we are applying to our grazing system It is important that our management remains intense and perhaps gets even more intense

We cannot at this point become lax and allow the forages to be overgraz

Rep. Miller Wants State Funds To Help Buy Insurance

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — As farmers struggle to salvage crops damaged by this year's drought, Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129) is developing legislation that is designed to help protect Pennsylvania's agriculture community from future natural disasters.

The Berks County lawmaker and vice chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee said she intends to introduce the "Agricultural Disaster Prevention Act" which calls for the state Department of Agriculture to pick up 50 percent of the cost of federal crop insurance for commonwealth farmers.

Funding, she said, would come from the state's general fund.

"Disasters like this year's drought threaten our food supply, as well as the stability of the agricultural industry as a whole," Miller said. "Crop insurance ensures that our farmers will receive at least some level of return if their crops are wiped out by events such as droughts or floods.

"Disaster prevention and relief are essential duties of our government. The agriculture industry – the number one industry in our commonwealth – needs and deserves this kind of support."

Miller's proposal authorizes the state Department of Agriculture to enter into an agreement with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) that would allow the state to cover 50 percent of the catastrophic risk protection premium per crop for farmers.

Catastrophic risk is the most basic level of crop insurance available and currently costs farmers about $60 per crop per county. While farmers could purchase additional coverage, the current legislation limits the state's contribution to 50 percent of the catastrophic risk fees.

"This proposal is designed to encourage at least basic participation by our farmers," Miller said. "However, I will continue to review the possibility of offering assistance for higher levels of coverage as well."

Currently, there are about 7,000 active crop insurance policies in Pennsylvania, covering just 30 percent of insurable acreage.

The federal crop insurance program is a wholly owned government corporation administered by the Risk Management Agency within the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Policies are offered through private insurance companies.

Drought-Year Feed Dangers Under Scrutiny

Craig provided an observation that he had heard several weeks ago: "When praying for rain, don't complain about the mud," he said, which can apply to a lot of conditions in the state, particularly in the southeast. The corn-growing season is over, and maximizing nutritional qualities of silage will be critical from now until the next growing season.

Growers need to watch for mold, fungus, virus, and harmful bacteria. It is critical to get the silage into the silo or bunker as quickly as possible, pack it to remove oxygen from the stored material, and to ensure proper fermentation is taking place.

Temperatures have to be just right in the ensiled material. Too high a temperatures aren't good. "We don't want compost," said Craig. "We want pickles."

Craig noted that the 1999 corn silage crop, in many locations "less than ideal," could use an inoculum to help the ensiling process. But Craig cautioned that you can't simply throw a cup of bacteria or other additive on the pile and hope for the best. The material has to be worked into the entire pile, sprayed on and spread out, as much as possible, to get the beneficial effect.

Ascetic or proprionic acids sometimes are added to drop the pH of the material. But silage managers have to be careful and on the lookout for the development of fungus which can generate mycotoxins — deadly to animals — in feed. To ensure fermentation continues and to prevent mold development, perhaps the final layer in a bunk should be laced with an acid-based material to ensure improved "pickling" of the silage.

Also at the Expo, Greg Roth, Penn State corn specialist, spoke about optimum plant densities for corn silage. Also, John Rutherford, multicounty farm management agent, and Al Shoener, Schuylkill County agronomy agent, spoke about pricing silage, forage, and high moisture corn and using, managing, and pricing custom farm operators.

Marvin Hall, Penn State forage specialist, spoke about forage quality at the site. At different seeding rates, through various Penn State studies, two-year research has found that forage quality was no different at any seeding rate for alfalfa.

At the Krall site, there was no difference in yield from 9-24 pounds per acre. Hall noted the ideal seeding rate is 15-18 pounds per acre. At 12-24 pounds, he said, "you'd be hard-pressed to tell much difference."

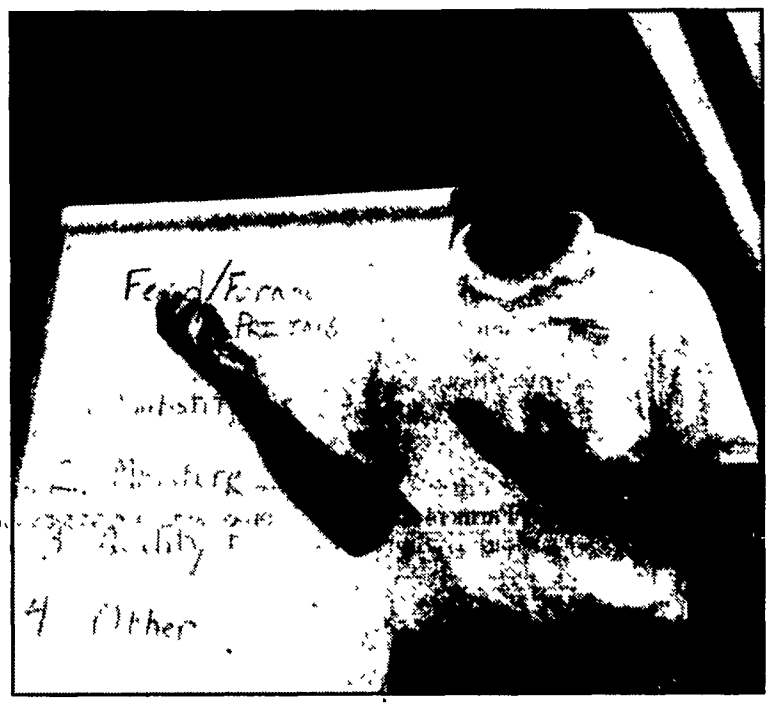
Several different forage harvesters were demonstrated by a variety of companies during the field day. Some of the harvesters were self-propelled with kernel processors. Here Glen Krall, right, and Brian Kreider, Lebanon, inspect the work. Photo by Andy Andrews

Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist, spoke about the emerging biotechnologies in corn, including the bioengineered Roundup Ready varieties, Liberty Link varieties, and IMI IT/IR varieties. The ideal time to spray Roundup for Roundup Ready varieties is 4-6 weeks after planting, when weeds are six inches tall.

The Krall dairy, according to Glen Krall, includes 112 acres, but the family farms a total of 400 acres. The Kralls manage about 100 registered and grade Holstein.

Glen, Linda, Jason, 25, and Stacy, 21, manage the farm.

Several different forage harvesters were demonstrated by a variety of companies during the field day. Some of the harvesters were self-propelled with kernel processors.



John Rutherford, multicounty farm management agent, pictured, and Al Shoener, Schuylkill County agronomy agent, spoke about pricing silage, forage, and high moisture corn and using, managing, and pricing custom farm operators.

Glen Krall, bottom, consults with self-propelled forage harvester driver Dale Balmer, Elizabethtown, at the Expo.

To get more out of silage, according to Dr. David Wolfgang, director of field investigations for the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System and Penn State dairy specialist, "chop it finer and make it wetter," he said.

New DFA venture building the future for nonrefrigerated dairy packaging

Dairy products that maintain freshness without refrigeration have been a dairy industry dream for years — some call it "the last great frontier in dairy." But now, a new processing and packaging development alliance promises to bring that dream to reality.

Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) and Netherlands-based Stork Foods and Dairy Systems, Inc. have formed ASEP-TECH USA, LLC, a joint venture to develop high-tech processing and packaging systems that result in extended-shelf-life dairy products that don't require preservatives, high-temperature processing or refrigeration.

"The need for refrigeration is a huge limiting factor for dairy products," explains Ed Tilley, DFA manager of business development. "Using aseptic processes, we can avoid preservatives or high temperatures that can alter the natural flavor of milk or other dairy foods. With new ASEP-TECH technologies we can develop products that are 'shelf stable' — they won't spoil when kept at room temperature. As long as the package remains unopened, products will be as good as the day they were packaged for several months. Being able to transport and store dairy products without refrigeration opens tremendous new marketing opportunities."

Gary Hanman, DFA president and CEO, agrees: "ASEP-TECH positions dairy farmers at the forefront of promising new technologies and systems that are necessary to give us a competitive edge in the multibillion-dollar food and beverage industry.

"Stork brings world-class technologies, state-of-the-art equipment and advanced manufacturing experience to the joint venture. DFA brings a leading-edge research and development facility, strong product development expertise and more than 50 years of processing and packaging experience," Hanman explains. "Together, we will develop innovative processing practices and plastic packaging technology that will create new marketing opportunities for dairy farmers."

In addition to creating its own branded products, DFA will market ASEP-TECH services to the U.S. food and dairy industry. The pilot plant can be used for product development, short production runs, or processing a variety of extended-shelf-life and shelf-stable products for limited test markets.

ASEP-TECH will share facilities with the DFA Technology Center in Springfield, Mo. The combined facilities will also offer advanced product development and testing, analytical and taste-testing capabilities.

Hundreds Of Farmers Headed To Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With the depressed farm economy worsening, hundreds of farmers and ranchers from across the country will descend on the nation's capital in September to fight for positive solutions to the farm crisis.

The National Farmers Union (NFU) grassroots lobbying campaign, or legislative fly-in, is set for Sept. 13-15. The lobbying push follows months of steadily declining farm prices for all commodities and livestock, weather disasters, and other poor market conditions.

"The fly-in is an opportunity to take the concerns of farmers and ranchers straight to the doorstep of Congress," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "This fly-in couldn't have come at a more critical time as Congress prepares to finish work on a farm relief package. We will also deliver a strong message from rural America calling for long-term structural changes to the farm program."

Fly-in participants will visit congressional offices from every state, pushing for short and long-term solutions to the crisis in the farm economy. NFU members will lobby for key improvement to a farm relief package passed by the Senate just prior to the August recess.

In addition, participants will tell lawmakers the farm program lacks an adequate safety net to buffer farmers during sharp downturns in prices, and that the secretary of agriculture should have more discretionary authority to respond to disasters in agriculture. Participants will also push for tools to manage large supplies that have driven down prices, such as a farmer-owned grain reserve and a short-term conservation reserve program.

Fly-in activities will also include a briefing with Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and his top deputies on Monday, Sept. 13.

Experience With 'Block Scheduling' Factor In Ag Instructor's Appointment To National FFA

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEWVILLE (Cumberland Co.) — A Big Spring High School agricultural science instructor with experience in the newly developed "block" classroom scheduling program has been selected to serve as a director of the National FFA Association board.

Vicki Lantz, 12-year agricultural science instructor at Big Spring High School and Big Spring FFA adviser, was selected recently to a three-year term on the board.

It is the first time a woman FFA teacher has been selected from Pennsylvania to the board.

Lantz, along with eight other members of the board chosen throughout the U.S., works with the six national FFA officers to determine policy and direction of the national association, headquartered in Indianapolis, Ind.

The FFA adviser began her high school teaching career at the Manheim Central High School, filling in for a six-month period for Manheim's instructor and FFA adviser, Deb Seibert.

Lantz, when she began teaching at Big Spring more than a decade ago, started with about 40 kids from grades 9-12 in the ag program, she said. Back then, the program was vocational with an emphasis on production agriculture. In the years since, along with a national restructuring of many high school ag programs, the movement has been away from strictly ag production to a more wide-based, agriscience emphasis, adopting elements of horticulture and food science.

Big Spring High School began a new type of classroom time structuring called "block scheduling" about four years ago. Before block scheduling, class periods lasted about 40 minutes or so, with more assigned classes. Block scheduling literally doubles the amount of time, to 80 minutes per period, four periods a day, at Big Spring.

"I love 80 minutes for teaching," said Lantz, "in shop or the classroom. You can get so much more done with this size classroom period. You can get the kids through projects a lot easier."

While block scheduling is a great boost to students and allows teachers to get more instruction into the class, some FFA kids don't benefit as well since some aren't involved in programs structured accordingly. Lantz is working on ways to incorporate time for FFA students so they can also benefit, considering there are less than 12 members of Big Spring FFA.

Lantz, who previously applied for a directorship at the national FFA level, said the block schedule has proved successful, allowing more than hour-long classes. When the block scheduling began, about 60 students were signed up for ag science programs at the school. Since then, this year, the requests soared to 350 — so students are becoming more and more interested in taking ag instruction.

At the school, Lantz noted the ag mechanics program is "real strong," she said, in addition to welding and small gas engines. "We also have a strong wood program," she said.

Other programs include general ag science, fish and wildlife (comprising three sections of 27 students), small pet care (27 students also), and food science and veterinary science (including about 10 students). The school also has a forestry program with 15-20 students.

Vicki Lantz, 12-year agricultural science instructor at Big Spring High School and Big Spring FFA adviser, was selected recently to a three-year term on the National FFA Association board.

The school offers many nine-week classes under the block program.

Lantz said she received lots of encouragement from other ag teachers in the state to apply for the position.

Her goals? At the national level, Lantz said she hopes to "see what other chapters and states are doing." Lantz's service will include obtaining direction and insight into where other chapters are headed and looking for ways to incorporate those lessons at Big Spring.

Lantz will be conferring with the U.S. Department of Education in Washington, D.C. on the goals of FFA chapters. She will work closely to monitor how the face of ag education will change through the years.

FFA remains primarily a youth leadership group, with emphasis on public speaking, horticulture, general ag science, and career development events to help the student learn, hands-on, life-affirming skills.

One of the big accomplishments for the FFA in recent years was allowing non-English speaking students a chance to serve at the national level. Lantz noted that Jose Santiago, the national FFA vice president from Puerto Rico, brought to mind the widespread appeal of FFA, the largest youth organization in the world.

Already the national organization is working to provide a Spanish version of the FFA Manual.

A lot more women are serving in FFA. Lantz said one state team is comprised of all women. Pennsylvania FFA is comprised of five men and five women.

Lantz already has learned ways in which other FFA chapters have adapted. In Indiana, the state officers all live in the same house and work together. This brings a lot of real-world knowledge of cooperation to the officer team.

On the National FFA board of directors, Lantz said she will oversee the career development events (CDE) programs for the chapters.

She plants to attend several national FFA functions throughout the year, including the National FFA Association July meeting in Indianapolis, Ind.; the FFA National Convention in October in Louisville, Ky.; and the meeting of the board at the end of January in Washington, D.C.

Lantz noted how amazed she was at the extent of commitment of the national FFA board. She is intent on obtaining feedback from the board to share with her own students and with teachers and advisers throughout Pennsylvania.

Other states, Lantz noted, have many people assigned in a distinct way to the functions of state FFA. But in Pennsylvania, a handful of people take on lots of assignments, doing a lot more work per person than other state chapters.

She is amazed at the amount of work that gets done in Pennsylvania by so few people.

Lantz has served as the Pa. Association of FFA South Central Region coordinator, as FFA board of directors PAAE representative, as PAAE president, was the PAAE and NAAE Region VI outstanding young member, south central region PAAE vice president, and in other capacities. She received a bachelor's degree in agriculture and extension education from Penn State and is set to receive a master's of education in agriculture and extension education from Penn State in December.

Lantz was raised on a dairy farm in south central Pennsylvania. She began her career as a member of the Cumberland Valley High School FFA and served as state vice president for the Pennsylvania FFA Association in 1983-1984.

She has been married since 1990 to William H. Lantz. Her hobbies include reading and gardening.

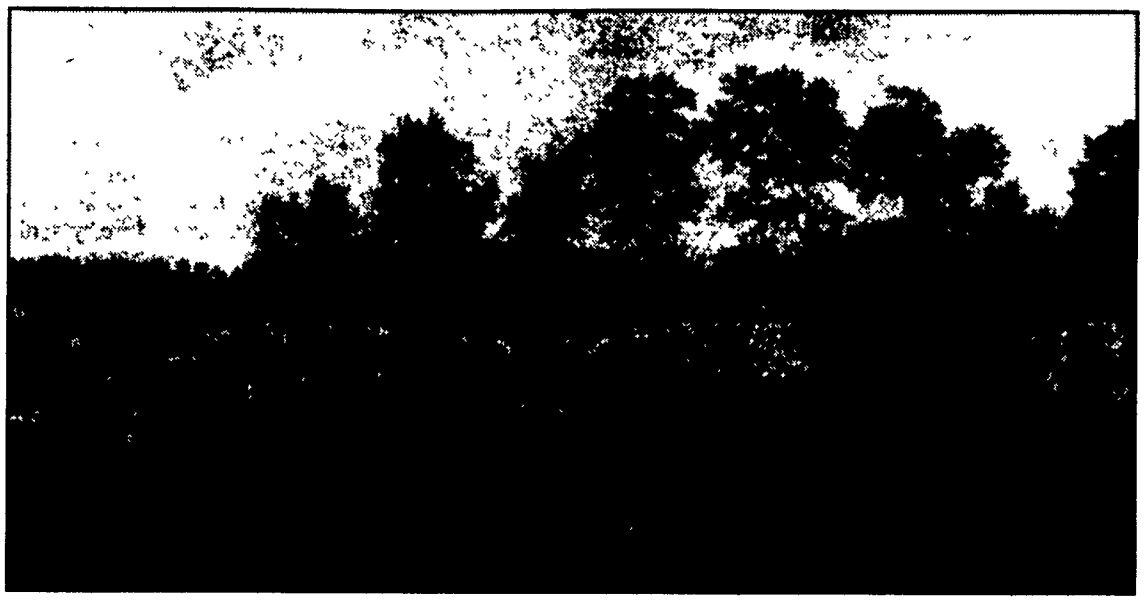
Research Field Day Held In New Holland

Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. is holding a series of agronomy research open houses and customer field days across the nation, mostly in the mid-West. But on Tuesday and Wednesday, nearly 1,000 people attended the event held in the east at the Pioneer Research Station in New Holland, Lancaster County. Company officials said the events were being held to provide information to farmers, not only on Pioneer products but also to give management information needed to get them through the drought situation and economic crisis.

Featured at the field day demonstrations were corn rootworm and herbicide resistant varieties, silage management, and new grain traits in soybeans and corn.

Topics on the program included the latest in crop technologies, specialty grains for contracting opportunities and added feed value, herbicide and pest resistant crops, corn silage breeding for tonnage and quality and the new Pioneer brand products.

Field days were also scheduled in Nebraska, Minnesota, Indiana, and Illinois.



Part of the nearly 1,000 farmers who attended the Pioneer Hi-Bred International field day at the Pioneer research facility in New Holland are shown observing the field demonstrations. The event was one of several research open houses and customer field days held across the nation.

Hay On Way To Drought-Stricken Eastern U.S. Farmers

By Marisa Doncevic

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) — Relief is on its way to drought-stricken farmers in the eastern United States, but not in the form of rain. Truck loads of hay from well watered Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas and Ontario are making their way to Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania and other places where pastures are dry and cattle have little or nothing to graze. Being forced to use their winter supply of hay to get through the summer, farmers are turning to Mennonite Disaster Service (MDS) for help.

MDS initiated a hay drive last week after some farmers in Michigan offered their bumper crop of hay to needy farmers in the East.

"I was talking to Jim Scott and Virgil Kauffman of the Michigan MDS unit about the Commins Mennonite Church rebuild (the church was destroyed in the July 3 tornado) and they mentioned that they knew of farmers who had an abundance of hay and wanted to send it east. So we made some connections between farmers who have hay and those that don't and set up a system of contact people and the hay started moving," said Tom Smucker, MDS executive coordinator.

The hay, received by donation as well as being purchased at low cost, is being delivered to farmers devastated by lack of rain in the Northeast and mid-Atlantic. Used to feed cattle, the hay is needed to carry the farmers through the winter months.

Nelson Bricker, Cumberland Valley MDS unit chair, said farmers who graze cattle have been feeding their first cutting hay, normally used in the winter, trying to get through the summer and leaving nothing for the fall or winter.

"I spoke with one farmer who only has a one-month supply left of hay to feed his 60 cattle," said Tom Weaver, the distribution coordinator in Virginia.

"The response to the need for hay has been very positive," said Weaver. "There is hay just waiting to be transported."

Two truck loads of hay arrived in Virginia this week and three more are on the way. A load was also delivered in Lebanon County last week.

Despite a few small rain showers, the effects of weeks without rain and high temperatures will continue to be seen months from now.

"There's a lot of excitement and enthusiasm about this now but this will be a long-term project and we're looking for long-term support. We may get a few nice rains but that won't eliminate the problem that started in May," Smucker said.

MDS is asking for donations to cover transportation costs as well as to pay for some hay. Contributions can be sent to MDS, PO Box 500, Akron, PA 17501 and should be designated drought relief. For more information on the MDS hay drive, call (717) 859-2210.

At Elizabethtown Fair, 200 Sheep Vie For Supreme Title

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — At the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds, more than 200 sheep competed in youth, open, and market shows on Wednesday.

Elizabethtown's competition is a bit different from other county shows. In addition to a supreme breeding sheep, separate competitions are conducted for market (which are not sold at the fair) and sale lambs with the champions from both competing for the supreme champion market lamb title.

This year's supreme champion market lamb was the sale champion owned by Jessica Stoltzfus, E-town. The 18-year-old was unable to attend because she started college at Lock Haven. Her friend Jessica Schmidt showed the Blue Acres (Robesonia) lamb.

This isn't the first time Jessica Stoltzfus won the coveted title. She not only showed the supreme breeding sheep twice before but also had the supreme over all species. Jessica has 40 ewes that her parents (Frank and Irene) will raise until Jessica graduates from college and knows whether or not she will be able to raise the flock.

Battling out the quest for the supreme title was Corby Ziegler's grand champion market lamb. Corby, from Lititz, will take the western-bought crossbred lamb, named Charlie, to New Holland. Corby, 13, has won the sale class at E-town three or four times previously. He said of consistent wins, "It's daily exercise."

The reserve market lamb was shown by Joelynn Donough, Manheim.

Reserve grand champion in sale competition was "Binkey," a lamb showed by 8-year-old Doug Musser, Mount Joy. It was his first year of showing, although his sister Kathy and brothers Richard and Michael are regular exhibitors.

The supreme champion breeding sheep was a Suffolk yearling ewe showed by Andrew Gerhart. The supreme breeding sheep competed for the supreme over all species (cow, steer, goat, sheep and swine) the following evening.

Andrew, 12, had shown both the grand champion Suffolk ewe and ram before going on to win the supreme over all other champion breeding sheep.

His Suffolk ewe, named Clio, had been purchased from Lynlee Farms, State College, during last year's Keystone International Livestock Exhibition, where it had been named supreme champion over all breeds.

Andrew raises 30-35 head of mostly Suffolks on her parents' (Cathy and Glen) Reinholds farm.

Judge Richard Kuzemchak said the quality of the sheep was remarkable with good representation from each breed.

In Cheviot competition, the grand champion was a homebred ewe showed by Travis Donough.

In Dorset competition, Jessica Schmidt showed the champion ewe and Radell Peters, the champion ram.

Hampshire grand champion ewe was shown by Erin Willard.

Tim Seibert showed the champion Shropshire ewe and his brother Casey showed the champion ram.

In Southdown competition, Jennifer Zimmerman showed the grand champion ewe. Jennifer also showed a Polled Dorset to win the champion over all breeds, a division for unique breeds.

The youth breed champions were also named champions in the open show except for the Hampshire division, where Robert Vanderwende of Akron under the Noblehouse name showed the the grand champion ewe and ram. Noblehouse also had the grand champion Southdown ram in the open show.

The newly-constructed livestock building was completed just in time to provide shelter from steady rain during Wednesday's competition. In other years, the competition was held in a tent, which sometimes flooded during the show. The bright, well-ventilated building allowed plenty of space for exhibitors to set up the sheep.

Showmanship was held for four age divisions. Ages 16-19: 1. Jessica Schmidt, 2. Jennifer Zimmerman, 3. Sarah Boyd.

Ages 13-15 years: 1. Corby Ziegler, 2 Derrick Bollinger, 3. Jimmy Zimmerman.

Ages 10-12: 1. Adam Zurin, 2. Joelyn Donough, 3. Ashley Bingamen.

Age 9 and under: 1. Derek Nissley, 2. Chad Newcomer, 3. Doug Musser.

At Elizabethtown Fair, Richard Kuzemchak selects the supreme champion breeding sheep, a Suffolk yearling ewe owned by Andrew Gerhart.

In his first year of showing, Doug Musser, 8, shows the reserve grand champion market lamb. His sister Kathy Musser holds the lamb named Binkey.

Jessica Schmidt exhibits the supreme grand champion market lamb owned by Jessica Stoltzfus, who couldn't attend the show because college had begun. The lamb was first named grand champion sale lamb, which then competed against the grand champion market lamb to win the supreme market lamb title.

A Tale Of Two Amys At E-town Swine Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — In this tale, two Amys took center stage Tuesday evening during swine competition here at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Two exhibitors named Amy — Amy Brandt and Amy Becker — won supreme and reserve champion, respectively.

The interesting thing: both hogs were from a lighter weight class. Both swine were similar in weight and breeding.

Both stood out as the most "complete" hogs in the ring, according to Brian Kreider, Lebanon, show judge.

Kreider noted he awarded the champion trophy to hogs that "have meat and move." Kreider said he enjoyed the lighter weight

(Turn to Page A35)

Amy Becker exhibited reserve champion hog at this year's Elizabethtown Fair. Show judge was Brian Kreider.

Amy Brandt won supreme champion market hog at the Elizabethtown Fair. Brian Kreider was show judge.

QUESTION: For the past few years we have seen MUN values increase when we started to feed new crop corn silage. What should we expect with drought-stricken corn that we will be feeding shortly?

ANSWER: The trend that you have seen in your MUN values over the years is a reflection of corn silage changes that occur during fermentation.

This year with dry conditions and some less than optimal corn to be chopped for silage, we can expect to see more dramatic MUN changes.

The first part of the question is an observation about MUN levels in cows and how feed changes can affect them.

A TMR that is put together with the same target amounts of feed does not necessarily generate the same efficiency or productivity.

We have thought in the past that there is little difference in a crop such as corn silage — now that thinking is different.

We see documentation about variety selection being very important to the performance of the cattle using it. While this is valuable in planning next year's crop, some thought needs to be given to what we have now.

Feeding new cut corn silage presents new challenges daily for a considerable length of time.

Corn from the same field can vary quite a bit in feed value to the cows.

Each day until full fermentation, we feed something different than the day before. Going from green chop to corn silage is what occurs on most farms.

Protein content, protein type, and carbohydrate levels in the diet influence MUN values. Looking at how much ureau shows up in milk samples shows relationships between rumen available protein and carbohydrates.

A feed such as corn silage that is used primarily for energy in the diet can change MUN values significantly.

The fermentation process of corn silage not only allows us to store it for long periods, but it also starts the digestive process that will continue in the rumen.

Looking at corn silage during the fermentation process, we see that carbohydrate levels increase and fiber levels decrease around 30 to 60 days into ensiling.

Matching this up with what we know about MUN trends, new silage increases MUN output of a cow due to lower carbohydrate levels in her diet.

The way to offset this effect is to increase other sources of carbohydrates to levels that will not diminish rumen health, but will better balance the protein in the diet.

We also have the option of slightly lower protein levels to maintain a correct balance.

The drought-stressed corn that many have this year will have the same effects during the fermentation period but to a greater degree.

We will see higher MUN values than we did in the past due to the added fact that there are less carbohydrates in the beginning. I would expect that the time between green chop and full fermentation would increase, because fewer carbohydrates are available to enhance fermentation.

Lastly, I would expect the MUN levels to be higher for the whole feeding season if we do not adjust for the lower energy corn silage that is currently going into some silos right now.

What strategies should we adopt to avoid high MUN?

I would expect to see more grain feeding than has been necessary in the past. At least grain prices are favorable to this approach.

We could lower protein feeding to stay in balance with the available carbohydrates. This may not be best when trying to maintain high levels of production.

Feeding a higher ratio of corn silage to hay crop forage could help and may be a good choice if your corn crop has low grain yields anyway.

Any combination of these will probably work in most situations.

Plans might include additional storage to reduce the drastic feed change that accompanies green chop corn.

One last though for today: Ruman health should always be our top priority.

For the time period when we know that MUN will increase, maybe we should anticipate what to do to minimize this rise and make some adjustments.

Be proactive in management based on trends of the past and estimates of what our feeding program is doing. Be reactive to what our cows tell us when they are tested and fine-tune further when necessary. When cows tell us the true story we cannot ignore them.

EASY + Tag ID = Economical Registration Of Holsteins

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Customers of the Holstein Association that use EASY and Tag ID now receive $1 off their registrations.

This combination makes processing registration applications more efficient and the Holstein Association is passing these savings onto customers. The dollar rebate is only offered to customers using Tag ID, Tags-N-Tattoo, or Tag-N-Freezebrand and EASY.

EASY is a Windows compatible software program that allows users to electronically register their animals. The program is offered for free by the Holstein Association. EASY interfaces with popular herd management programs such as Dairy Comp 305, PC Dart and DHI Plus.

Managers can transfer the information from their management program directly to EASY, fill in missing information and submit the application.

Applications can be sent to the Holstein Association headquarters on disk or electronically using Internet File Transfer Protocol (FTP) or e-mail (easy@holstein.com).

The Tag ID program has offered many dairy producers a simple and quick way to identify their animals. The tags can be used on their own or in combination with a tattoo or freezebrand to replace the traditional sketches or photos needed for registration.

The combination of EASY and Tag ID reduces the cost to dairy producers associated with the time and labor required to register animals. Add in the $1 rebate on registrations and there has never been a better time to register Holsteins with Holstein Association USA.

If you're interested in enrolling in the Tag ID program or using EASY to get your $1 rebate call a Holstein Association Representative today at 800-952-5200.

Burrell Takes York 4-H Lamb Roundup Honors

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BLAIR (York Co.) — Dover 4-H livestock exhibitor Mike Burrell wrapped up his last 4-H livestock roundup in blue-ribbon style, snagging both champion and reserve champion honors in the market lamb shows.

The 19-year-old 4-H veteran showed a set of crossbred Suffolks to the top honors, adding additional banners to a collection of dozens of 4-H lamb awards and trophies earned during his decade of 4-H competition.

Burrell's 123-pound champion opened the annual roundup lamb sale, going down in a round of bidding to Allfirst Bank, represented by Dave Yake, on a final bid of $3 per pound for the wether.

Following was the reserve winner, weighing in at 115 pounds and selling to a venture of his grandparents who have purchased numerous Burrell's roundup champions over the years. B & N Enterprises, consisting of paternal grandmother Evelyn Burrell and maternal grandparents Ray and Louise Ness, bid $4 per pound for the runner-up, then sent the ewe back to the Burrell flock for future breeding use.

Burrell is headed to Messiah College to begin studies in premed. The livestock earnings will help to fund his continuing education.

Champion mediumweight entry, weighing 138-pounds was shown by Jon Emenheiser. The lamb sold for $1.50 per pound to First Capital Wire and Cable Company.

Travis Flory exhibited the champion lightweight. The 96-pound lamb brought $2.30 per pound from buyer Hydro-Kirby Ag Service.

A $1.70 per pound bid brought the reserve champion medium weight, a 100-pounder exhibited by Russell Lawrence. Winning bidder was Garrod Hydraulics, Inc.

Reserve champion lightweight was an 87-pound lamb exhibited by Tasha Flory. The reserve weight class winner sold to S & S Produce and Crab House, with a final bid of $2 per pound.

Sales of the three dozen lambs generated about $7,000 for the participating 4-H exhibitors. Average price, including the champions, was $1.79 per pound; without the champions, the price averaged $1.70 per pound.

as calves with live weights of over 400 pounds and fed no special diet; (3) non-special-fed a variety of different diets and marketed at live weights of 150-400 pounds; (4) special-fed-veal calves fed special milk replacer diets and marketed at an average weight of about 475 pounds (18-20 weeks of age); (5) used as dairy-beef, fed traditional beef production diets and marketed at 1200-1300 pounds as beef. It is the special-fed production system that generally draws public criticism.

Although several departments at Penn State had previously conducted research and extension programs in veal production, a comprehensive veal project was first initiated in 1988 with research funds administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). PDA and several veal industry sources continue to support a variety of research efforts. While some of the research trials directly addressed public concerns and criticisms, most of the research dealt with components of the veal production system that would enhance the well-being of the calf and increase profitability of the veal enterprise for the producer.

Several studies over the past 10 years have included surveys of the hemoglobin level and structural soundness of calves at different periods in the production cycle. Although the level of hemoglobin (the oxygen-carrying component of blood) is lower than in calves of similar age fed grain and forages, the veal calves sampled, on average, are not classified as anemic. One of the results of Penn State's studies has been the sampling of a higher proportion of calves throughout the barn, if not the entire group of calves, on a monthly basis to make sure that all of the calves have enough iron in their diets to maintain an acceptable hemoglobin level. While we identified differences among farms, these differences are not as great now as 10-15 years ago. There has also been a tendency for increased hemoglobin at the end of the production cycle, since the average calf age at processing has increased from 14 weeks 12 years ago to 19 weeks now. This older age at marketing dictates the calves have a higher hemoglobin level to maintain acceptable stamina and health to grow efficiently to the processing age, and to be ambulatory during the trip to the packer.

In veal research trials at Penn State, we have evaluated more than 5,000 calves at different stages of production. Essentially every characteristic evaluated (physical soundness, eye, nose, respiratory or enteric impairments) was improved from the time the calves arrived at the veal farm through the end of the production cycle. Even though the calves had been restrained in individual stalls with tethers (another practice causing public concern), the ambulatory ability of the calves when moving from their stalls to the truck was generally acceptable.

One very important factor in determining the rate and efficiency of growth, health status, mortality percent, and the amount of medication used in the special-fed production system is the health and soundness of the calves upon arrival at the veal farm. After the calves leave the dairy farm between two and seven days of age, they are transported to a livestock auction (although some go to a collection point instead of an auction), and then are transported to the veal farm. This is rather rigorous and stressful for a young animal, even if the calves are in good condition when leaving the dairy farm.

One of the biggest voids identified in calves arriving at veal and dairy-beef farms was the relatively low percent that had acceptable intakes of quality colostrum. Blood tests conducted on the calves arriving at veal farms in 1991-1992, and in 1997-1998 indicated that more than 40% of the calves do not have acceptable immunoglobulins (blood components to help calves fight diseases), attributed to inadequacies in colostrum intake.

Many other veal research trials have been conducted to determine the stress and behavior of calves in different sizes and types of individual housing, effects of growth promotants on live and carcass traits, use of probiotics, and other non-medicinal treatments to maintain or improve the health of the calf. Methods of measuring carcass quality, comparison of mechanically-

Varner Exhibits Grand At S.C. Championship

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Brad Varner of Newville recently exhibited the grand champion of the open and youth divisions of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's South Central Championship Show held at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

Varner's grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, Ronbeth A Star Chorus, a Duregal Astre Starbuck daughter. It was also named best bred and owned of the show.

Judge of the show was Michael Heath of Westminster, Maryland.

The reserve grand champion was a junior 2-year-old, Eastriver Indianhead Poli, an Indianhead Red Marker-ET daughter. She is owned by a collective ownership well-recognized on the Pennsylvania Holstein show circuit, that goes by the family names of McCauley, Strouse, Connelly, and Stroud.

The junior champion of both the open and youth divisions was a spring yearling, Woodbine-ND DAS Fabulous-ET, owned by Kristin McCauley of Middletown.

The reserve junior champion was a spring calf, Penn-Gate Encore Skyfine-ET, owned by Clatyon Wood of Littlestown.

Double-Crop Small Grains To Alleviate Feed Shortage

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Heavy rains in late August may be too late to save drought-stricken corn crops in many parts of the Mid-Atlantic area. But they could offer opportunity for beef producers and dairy farmers to reduce the likelihood of serious livestock feed shortages this fall and winter.

How? By sowing small grains now for late fall and early spring emergency grazing and for fall or spring silage harvest.

That's the word from Lester Vough, forage crops specialist for Maryland Cooperative Extension at the University of Maryland. Vough points out that winter small grains also serve as a cover crop to control soil erosion.

And new fencing technologies make it economically feasible for livestock producers to fence their fields for grazing, he notes.

If the rains come, Vough recommends that spring oats be sown not later than Aug. 31, since this crop can be counted on to provide more grazing this fall than any other small grain. Oats also make a good fall silage crop. However, oats won't survive over winter as do wheat and rye.

After Aug. 31 and through October, Vough suggests seeding winter small grains such as wheat, barley, rye, or triticale.

During this period, it's a good idea to sow a mixture of small grains (other than oats). This will extend the grazing season and make ensiling time less critical, since the various small grains have different maturity times.

Combinations of rye and triticale or rye-wheat-barley are good bets for spring silage harvest. Triticale also works well for silage when no-tilled into an existing alfalfa stand.

Hairy vetch and field peas sown with small grains make an excellent forage crop for use as silage next spring. But they will not withstand fall grazing, Vough cautioned, and they should be sown by Oct. 1.

He warns farmers to be careful about sowing small grains in fields that were planted to corn this spring. Because of the drought, carryover of atrazine and other herbicides is greater than normal. This could cause adverse effects for small grain and forage seedings this fall.

Vough agrees that early fall seeding of small grains — particularly wheat — could result in damage by the Hessian fly, crown and root rot diseases, and various mosaic viruses. But this concern is lessened by increasing the seeding rate 50 to 100 percent and remembering that the goal is to produce forage, not grain.

hogs because they "were more complete, in my opinion," he said, in terms of meat and muscling.

Amy Brandt exhibited the supreme champion. Amy, 11, daughter of Dale and Lynette Brandt, Middletown, is in the sixth grade at Lower Dauphin Middle School. She exhibited a 242-pound York/Hampshire crossbred barrow, nicknamed "Oscar Meyer," for its end-product appeal.

Amy said the barrow was obtained from a sale in Quarryville. Amy selected the hog from a group purchased at the sale by her father.

Amy, who also won champion showman in her age class, exhibited at this year's county swine roundup. She intends to show at this year's Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Amy Becker won reserve champion of the swine show. Her hog, also from the medium weight class, was also a York/Hampshire crossbred, a 240-pound gilt.

Amy, 18, is the daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim. The 1999 Manheim Central High School graduate is majoring in culinary arts at York Technical School.

The hog, according to her dad Marlin, was obtained from Larry Mapes in Ohio and purchased at a feeder pig sale in Shippensburg. Amy said she won reserve overall at the Elizabethtown Fair in 1995.

Amy plans to show at Denver, New Holland, Manheim, and state Farm Show.

There were a total of 87 hogs and 37 exhibitors. Following is a list of show placings.

Champions Named At Annual 4-H Swine Roundup

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BLAIR (York Co.) — A 250-pound entry snagged grand champion swine honors at the annual York 4-The H Livestock Roundup Aug. 16 at the 4-H Center's exhibition arena.

Exhibitor of the prize-winning pig was Jessica Innerst, 12, Red Lion. At the popular sale which followed, the champion animal sold to Windsong Farm Kennels, Joe and Michelle Semeister, Red Lion, for a $2.50 per pound price.

Runner-up in the hog show was the reserve champion, a 266-pounder shown by rookie 4-H'er Chad Menges. John Eaton, Jr., representing Peoples Bank, was the winning bidder with a $2.60 per pound call. The 9-year-old winner had purchased his first project pig, a crossbred gilt, at the Bankert and Innerst Maxon-Dixon spring pig sale.

Heather Miller matched a set of 38-pound and 247-pound pigs to snag the champion pair honors. They sold to Hafield Quality Meats for 60 cents per pound.

Reserve champion pair was exhibited by Brandon Wiley. His 235- and 237-pound matched entries were purchased by Windsor Meat Market on a 65-cent bid.

Allen Cornbower exhibited the champion medium weight entry, which sold for $1.55 per pound to Leidy's Inc.

Champion lightweight was exhibited by Mike Burrell. His 232-pound pig went to Allfirst Bank, on a 90-cent bid.

Zachary Switzer took reserve champion mediumweight hog honors with his 241-pound entry. Winning buyer, on a $1.80 per pound bid, was Brown's Orchard Farm Market.

Winner of the reserve champion lightweight was Barbara Richardson. Her 226-pounder brought a final bid of $1 per pound from Quality Embroidery, Felton.

Champion showman in the swine runoffs was veteran 4-H livestock exhibitor Mike Burrell, Dover. Reserve champion showman was Heather Jasienski.

A total of 172 head were sold in the annual swine roundup sale, generating more than $18,500 for the several dozen participating exhibitors. Average with the champions was $1 per pound, dropping only a nickel per pound, 95-cents for an average without the champions.

versus naturally-ventilated housing, methods to reduce carcass quality losses, and reduction of the potential for violative chemical residues in veal meat are other areas researched.

The veal industry, with the use of association membership and check-off funds, has successfully designed and conducted progressive quality assurance, environmental assurance, and public information/education programs, based generally on research findings. In addressing the public concerns, the research at Penn State and other universities has provided science-based information to improve conditions for both the calf and the producer in production systems. This research also effectively addresses the concerns of the public—the ultimate consumer of all agricultural products.

CHOOSE THE RIGHT BUSINESS ENTITY

Andrew B. Martin
Farm Management Agent
Multicounty Penn State
Cooperative Extension

There is no such thing as risk-free farming. A severe drop in milk sales, a huge increase in operating cost, a large jury verdict against your farm — any of these events can wipe out your farm investment.

That's no surprise. You know about these risks when you put your money into the business. But did you consider the possibility that your losses could go beyond your investment?

Your nonfarm assets could be at risk as well. You can protect your nonfarm investments by choosing the right business entity.

Conside this scenario. Steve starts a small farm. To hold down the start-up costs and avoid paperwork, he decides to run the farm as a sole proprietorship.

Steve's farm flourishes and, at the end of seven years, the farm has six employees who report to a herdsman. One day, in a fit of rage, the herdsman fires Linda, one of the six new employees. Soon after, when another farm employer calls to find out what happened, the hothead herdsman unleashes a blistering attack on Linda.

When Steve hears about this, he is appalled — but it's too late. Linda has already seen a trial lawyer and winds up suing Steven's farm. The jury returns a verdict of $100,000. Ouch!

Steve's farm only has enough assets to pay about one-third of the judgment. Because Steve's farm is run as a sole proprietorship, he's personally responsible for the remaining two-thirds.

Linda's lawyer uses legal techniques to collect the balance from Steve's personal bank account and some mutual funds he's been counting on as part of his retirement program. Fortunately — if that's the right word — there's enough to pay the judgment, leaving Steve's equity in his home intact.

A nightmare scenario? You bet.

It's truly scary to realize that you can lose your personal assets as well as your farm assets if you haven't taken steps to protect yourself.

The good news is that with a bit of planning and a little expense, you can do a great deal to limit your personal liability for farm debts.

(1) Choose the right business entity. If you set your business up as a sole preoprietorship, the law treats you and the farm as one and the same. You have unlimited liability. The same is true for a partnership. You and each of your partners are fully liable for all debts of the partnership.

The same isn't true, however, if you do business through a corporation or a Limited Liability Company (LLC). With either a corporation or LLC, you're generally off the hook for business debts. The most you stand to lose is that money that you invest in the farm.

(2) Keep your protection intact. To get full benefit of a corporation or LLC status, you need to treat your farm entity as separate from yourself. Judges take the position that if you don't take the legal system seriously, the legal system won't either.

Put enough money into the farm to show that the corporation or LLC is more than an empty shell. Look to your accountant for advice. Open a separate bank account for the farm and put the farm's name on the checks. File annual reports if they're required by law.

Use the official name of your corporation or LLC. File a certificate of a fictitious name if you're going to use another farm business name. Sign contracts and other business papers as an agent of the farm, for example:

•Martin and Cow's, Inc.
By_____
Andrew B. Martin, President or

•Milk and Honey, LLC
By_____
Steve Fisher, Member

Sign a written lease if your corporation or LLC is going to use a building or personal property that you own.

Hold annual meetings and keep minutes or signed consent resolutions as required by laws in your state.

(3) Know the limits. There are a few important exceptions. Under corporation or LLC, you won't be protected if you personally guarantee a business obligation. Sometimes this can't be avoided. A bank may be unwilling to lend money to your farm unless your guarantee the repayment.

You won't be protected if you, rather than the employee, engages in the conduct that leads to a law suit. In the example at the beginning of this column, Steve would have escaped personal liability for the herdsman's action if he had incorporated or formed an LLC. But, if Steve had fired Linda and made the outrageous statements about her, Steve would still be personally liable. You can't count on a corporation or LLC to shield you from your wrongful acts.

This column may not be construed as legal advice. Readers should consult with their own tax advisers and attorney at law with respect to choosing a business entity.

oo late to save this year's corn crop. Midwestern feeders sold cattle 1.00 higher at 56.00 and their expecting a bumper crop. Feedlots are securing ample supplies of nexpensive feed and cattle are starting to how some impressive profits. This is causing a big demand for feeder cattle; and since Western feeder cattle are busy grazng lush pastures, a large percentage of the Mid-Atlantic's early Fall run is being sent west. Supply included 48 percent slaughter steers, 5 percent slaughter heifers, 33 percent slaughter cows, 5 percent slaughter bulls, with the balance made up of feeder cattle.

Sure Stand Grass Seeders

THE ERGONOMICS OF USING A BRILLION "SURE STAND" SEEDER

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity. By properly placing the grass seed in the top 1/2" of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination.

Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used. In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure Stand" Seeder in just a short time.

Don't risk your crop to another system. Don't settle for less. Use the one seeding method that you can depend on to produce a top stand time after time...a Brillion Sure Stand Seeder.

FARM TIRES
THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

In a rare moment, Barb and Larry Weaver relax on the lawn of Weaverland Valley Farms. Of all their farm endeavors, the couple find the greatest satisfaction in raising champion Angus breeding stock.

Making Of A Champion

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Anyone can buy and show a champion, but to breed a grand champion takes someone like Barb Weaver.

It takes years of breeding to improve stock, and paying attention to details in feeding, training, fitting, and showing.

Behind every grand champion animal is a person who has honed those skills, who has experienced disappointments and persevered.

Barb is one of those persons.

At the Pennsylvania Angus Breeders Show held this summer, Weaverland Valley Farms exhibited the grand champion bull and female; another of their bred heifer's was named champion in the Junior show That same week, one of their Angus heifers received media coverage when 4-H'er Daniel Fox won the 4-H county roundup beef show.

"It's Barb's project. She's the one who gets the credit," said her husband Larry of Weaverland's success.

Barb said that she had no experience with farming or 4-H until she married Larry 16 years ago. The couple, who each had a daughter, six months apart in age, from previous marriages, became immensed in 4-H and their daughters' projects.

Jodie and Kristin were so successful in showing that they both helped finance college tuition and expenses with their prize money. It was through the daughters that Barb became fascinated with the dynamics of breeding to upgrade a herd and the excitement of show competition.

When Jodie and Kristin went off to college, Barb devoted her time to built the herd with the show stock the daughters had begun developing.

In recounting the beginning of Weaverland's show stock, Barb said that at first their daughters raised crossbred steers for projects. Their first purebred Angus was purchased from a breeder with the intention of raising it for market and not for breeding. On a flute, they took the purebred Angus to a Pennsylvania Breeders' show and the girls won grand champion. From then on, they were hooked on shows and on raising purebred Angus.

To see if they would like to continue raising breeding stock, Kristin and Barb both purchased a purebred cow, which each had a heifer calf. Out of this a super champion, Jillian was born, from which several of the 35 Angus cows and 30 calves have been derived to make up Weaverland's progeny. They have also sold numerous offspring in recent years.

On Oct. 30, Weaverland Valley Farms will holds its fourth annual sale to sell steers and spring heifers. All calves are halter and tie broken under Barb's persistent training.

Barb said that training begins from day one. Calves are fitted with a halter they drag around and step on a few times, which helps them adapt them to the feel of a halter.

For an hour each day, calves are tied. Barb stays with them during this time for about a week to help allay their fears. Slowly she begins to comb, brush, scratch, and pet the calves to tame them.

Larry helps the first few days, especially with rambunctious calves.

Generally about 20 calves are tied up at a time.

"It's just as easy to halter break 20 as it is for one. And when it's done together, they act better than alone," Barb said.

It doesn't take long before the calves react with friendliness toward humans. Barb uses a hair blower occasionally to acquaint them with the sound and sensation when they will need to be fitted for the show ring.

When the cattle are pastured, potential buyers often walk through the area. This further tames the animals.

Barb said that it works well to have the cows and calves together because the tamed cows transmit calmness to the calves.

The calves are headstarted in creep area, where only the calves can pass through to the feed trough. They are allowed to munch whenever they want to help fill out their frame and become more marketable.

Eventually the calves are halter led. Bull calves are fitted with nose rings and taught to walk with a show stick in front of their nose.

The heifers will calve in February. Barb finds it exciting to match bulls to improve the breed and is always eager to see how the offspring turn out.

Calves are weaned at 500-600 pounds. At this point, Barb needs to decide which ones she will enter in shows in order to register.

"You never know when you wean them which ones are going to turn out the best. Sometimes when you wean one, it will fall apart for awhile. Occasionally a calf will seem ordinary but develop into champion stock.

A promising calf does not always turn out as planned. One bull that looked especially promising kept riding the calves and hurt his shoulder from which he never entirely recuperated. The injury automatically eliminated its potential as breeding stock.

Calves not kept for bulls are steered and sold at their annual fall sale. It is not unusual for Weaverland Valley Farms to sell high for the market.

"People know our stock. Bidders fight over thick ribeyes. A bull sold for 80 cents a pound when others were only bringing 50 cents," Barb said.

For the past three years, Weaverland has sold bulls at the Ohio Beef Expo.

Although it's expensive to show, it's also a necessity in order to sell breeding stock.

"Showing is part of the marketing system required to get your name out there," Barb said.

She is pleased that Weaverland Valley Farms has consistently built up its stock so that people now come and the Weavers can bargain effectively.

"We service what we sell. We offer consultation for breeding, feeding, and will clip the steer for its first show."

The Weavers also sell half interests in heifers and will do the showing for buyers.

For the last three years, Weaver-

Boy, it feels good.

Having to put on "sweats" because the evenings are so cool.

"August will be better," I had wishfully intoned, perspiring through the relentlessness of July, with its days and days of 90-plus, dripping-wet, cattle-panting, seemingly-endless desert-like weather. August has brought more of the same but with less intense stretches of it. and some delightful, if sporadic, relief, in refreshingly chilly evenings and early mornings.

Our enduring drought is far from ended, despite some spotty, scattered showers. Bubbles still fill our faucets at peak use time, as the cattle and the milk equipment washing systems demand more water than our shrinking undergrounds reserves can muster each moment. So laundry continues to be done at 4:30 a m., before the cow's thirst goes into overdrive, and post-milking evening showers are akin to bathing under a sprinkling-can spout.

But, the inevitable signs are here. Fall is about to kick in.

Dark descends minutes earlier, ushering in the late-summer racket of the "night bugs." The loud buzzing of cicadas whichever hatch of the "locust" this year's happens to be overrides more subtle sounds of the dusk. On these cooler evenings, we silence the roaring grain-dryer fan, adapted lynchpin of our dairy barn, wind-tunnel-like ventilation. So the fans roar is replaced by the high-pitched whine of the after-dark insect chorus.

The cicadas' singing nearly drowns out the welcome chirps of the crickets, one of my favorite insects A cricket in the house is supposed to bring luck, isn't it? So these cherry chirpers are always welcome, arriving early this year as July ticked away its dying hours. That first cricket seemed a good omen, a reminder that cooling weather and rains - someday - would return to the pendulum of extremes to which our weather so frequently swings.

Now the first "pumpkin" sits perched on the front porch, a small version of a sort of pie squash, bright orange on one side, but an anemic yellowish-green on the other. It's doubtful the "pumpkin" is thoroughly ripe; the vine shriveled up ahead of schedule, victim of the summer's dry heat. Others linger longer, hopefully clinging to their life-giving umbilicals until reaching solid orange maturity Despite the lack of moisture, there are two giants relatively speaking hiding among the tangle of vines between the barns

The porch "pumpkin" may have a short-lived stay. It's already the object of attention of a four-year-old with early Halloween plans.

Though last week's spot thundershowers will perk up the tomatoes and plump up the lima beans, most of the garden is oblivion-bound. Only a few scruffy pods linger on tired string bean stalks. melon vines are drying up, a few aged cantaloupes and never-ripened watermelons and honeydews still attached. Our late, unpromising, patch of sweet corn vanishes with the test-run passes of the forage harvester, feed now happily munched by the "girls" who missed their daily ration of corn silage after we ran out some weeks ago.

Knowing these days of trotting to the garden for fresh produce are growing short, I tucked a few hills of late squash and cucumbers on the south-facing bank near the barn. With a little luck, and some diligent use of row cover fabric, we may enjoy those for several more weeks.

Field corn is "made" and quickly drying down, while soybeans may show one last, pod-fattening growth spurt from recent light moisture. Goldenrod colors the fence rows, milkweed pods grow pudgy, and the clingy seeds of burdock stick to socks and the dog after a walk

While the drought may linger causing us wishful thoughts about gentle, slow-moving, low-wind tropical storms the backbone of summer's heat is badly cracked, if not completely broken Not likely we'll hear many complaints about it, either

Welcome, September.

Hope you brought your own water.

Baseball Campaign A Surefire Hit

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic (ADA/DC) has formed a winning team this baseball season by pairing baseball, the beloved American sport, with milk, the All-American drink.

To motivate baseball fan families to drink more milk, ADA/DC has developed a campaign focused on regional baseball teams and celebrities. The key elements in the campaign include television commercials, radio advertisements, billboards, a Milk Night at the Baltimore Orioles' Camden Yards and Minor League baseball promotions.

A major component of the baseball campaign, themed "Milk, You Are What You Drink," features legendary Orioles baseball star, and two-decade long milk proponent Cal Ripken Jr.

In addition to honoring the contributions Ripken has made to baseball during his All-Star career, radio and television ads highlight the contribution that Ripken's avid consumption of milk has made to his success. An award winning outdoor print campaign reinforces this message, with a photo of Ripken midair, waiting to catch a carton of milk.

ADA/DC reached more than 60,000 baseball fans directly through a Milk Night at Camden Yards and several minor league baseball Dairy Nights. More than 20,000 people attended these minor league promotions designed to educate baseball fans and their families about milk's role in building strong bones and maintaining good health.

Maryland and Delaware dairy princesses hosted a first pitch ceremony and hosted a dairy information table. One of the highlights of the evening was a cow milking contest before the first pitch, in which home team competed against the away team.

ADA/DC sponsored a "Strike Out Osteoporosis" contest at each minor league promotion, awarding a donation of $100 for osteoporosis prevention each time the home team struck out the away team. More than $3,300 dollars were donated to the National Osteoporosis Foundation.

Becoming A Champion

land has been named premier breeder in Pennsylvania from points tallied from the state Farm Show and Pennsylvania breeder shows. Points are tallied for bred cattle, which have been purchased and shown by other owners.

"Showing fits in well for us," Barb said.

The one thing that Larry does that Barb doesn't is fit the cattle for shows such as the state Farm Show, Atlantic National, Breeder, and Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

Clipping styles are set at national shows.

"Every year, we see something a little bit different. Every fitter does something a little different," Barb said.

Some styles, at first, don't seem appealing. "But if the cattle do well in the show ring, then you take a closer look."

Larry said he realized the importance of fitting an animal when he was a teen-ager. He had attended a national show where he saw hair body clipped similar to the way they are trimmed today. "I couldn't wait to get home and try it — and I was the first in the area to try it," Larry said.

In the '60s, people concocted their own mixtures to prepare cattle for the show ring. Today, the market abounds with products.

The Weavers generally feed 120 head of market steers. Silos are used for storing the harvest.

Weaverland's white barns with gray trim, and the stone and stucco house have been in the family for four generations. The barn is dated 1805. The house is older but no date has been established.

Weaver's have added their own personal style with a brick patio and walks surrounded by profuse perennials. The kitchen table is placed in front of long bay windows that overlook acres of rolling farmland.

When Larry began farming, the farm had 44 acres. Later, he purchased an adjoining farm with 40 acres that had been part of the original deed.

Contented cats and frisky kittens, and an occasional moo belies the facade that all is well in farming.

A summer drought has resulted in severe losses. Larry estimated that he had a 70 percent corn loss, the worse that he or his dad remembers.

Larry is what he calls "a pioneer in ag preserve" because their farm was the first in the area to be included in ag preservation.

"The whole program could have been set up differently. Instead of giving money outright, they should have given farmers a tremendous tax break that was ongoing. Government has got to preserve the farmer instead of the farmland. If farming is profitable, the best farmland will be preserved," Larry said.

A farmer who has remained on the cutting edge of technology, the Weavers are frustrated by declining commodity prices and high equipment costs.

"I'm in all the wrong things," Larry said of raising beef and eight acres of tobacco. A few years ago he got out of the hog market when it was struggling.

Barb takes care of the farm bookkeeping. She also worked for the tobacco auction cooperative formed in the county.

This has been a tough summer for many farmers and the Weavers are no exception. Barb said it was so depressing to look out the window and see crops shriveling that she took off to Potter County to spend 10 days at their cabin. During hunting season, the couple hunt together. She also finds relaxation from farm pressures by playing golf.

The Weavers said that breeding cattle has been the one area of farming that has remained stable for them.

The couple both love watching "the babies," Barb said. "There is no greater satisfaction than breeding and seeing how the calves turn out. And it's great to see kids who purchase our stock do well in shows."

There is also a downside. Occasionally stock is sold to some who don't feed them properly. One in particular, Barb said, had the appearance of a champion, but when she saw it after it had been sold, it was a bag of bones.

"I cried," she said. "You need the right kind of calf to begin with, but you also need precise feeding, exercise, and breeding to continue (the lineage)."

"Years ago, you made the cattle look tall. Today you want them to look more blocky," Larry said.

Meat packers have a big influence on finishing. For a number of years, lean was in style.

"But people found out it's no fun to eat lean meat. Now you want meat marbling and it must have a black hide to be labeled Certified Angus," Larry said.

From the time Larry first started showing until today, he said that things have changed dramatically.

RUTGERS, N.J. — Reverse mortgages are attractive to seniors who own their homes free and clear (or with small mortgage) and want to remain there. Instead of having to make monthly loan payments, borrowers tap into the equity of their home, which can be received as a lump sum, a line of credit, and/or monthly cash payments. The amount received is determine by the value of a home, a borrower's age, and prevailing interest rates.

Reverse mortgages are not repaid until a borrower sells their home, passes away, or no longer uses the home as their primary residence. All reverse mortgages approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) require a consultation with a HUD-approved counselor.

The income received from a reverse mortgage is considered a loan and is, therefore, not taxable. The funds received can be used for any purpose including: payment of property taxes, home repairs, medical expenses, Medigap health insurance premiums, travel, or a more comfortable lifestyle.

Reverse mortgage loan proceeds do not affect Social Security or Medicare benefits. They can, however, affect qualification for needs-based programs, (e.g. SSI, Medicaid) if funds are not spent promptly during the month that they are received. Reverse mortgages also affect family estate transfers. Borrowers are literally (as the popular bumper stickers say) "spending their childrens' inheritance" and may wish to discuss this with heirs.

Advantages of reverse mortgages include the fact that home equity can be tapped without having to make monthly payments. A borrower also doesn't have to worry about finding money for home repairs or property taxes if other income sources are limited.

There are also several disadvantages. Interest is compounded and cannot be deducted on income tax returns until a reverse mortgage is repaid. Also, interest rates and initial costs can be substantially higher than conventional mortgages.

A borrower continues to own their home with a reverse mortgage and can freely remodel or redecorate. In addition, the loan balance can never exceed the lesser of the amount borrowed or the value of a home, so there is not liability to the heirs.

Along with reverse mortgages, there are other ways to tap home equity including a sale-leaseback, selling a home and either "trading-down" or renting, a home equity loan, and refinancing. These options should also be explored.

Sources of information about reverse mortgages include the AARP Home Equity Information Center (202) 434-6044, Fannie Mae (1-800-7FANNIE), and the Web site <www.reverse.org>.

Becoming A Champion

Genetics are so much better.

Barb said, "The Angus Association has the best set records of cows and bulls. Angus is so far advanced compared to other breeds."

For the past six or seven years, Barb has been secretary of the Pennsylvania Angus Association, but she is generally more behind the scenes and Larry is the one who is often in the limelight. In fact, the day of this interview, a TV station was interviewing him in relationship to the drought situation.

Larry's been getting media coverage since his teen-age years. A one-time state vice president of FFA and member of the 4-H judging team, Larry went on to become chairman of the Earl Township Planning Commission, a former chairman of the Farm and Home Foundation, director of the Pennsylvania Angus Association and of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association, and a 25-year 4-H leader.

Both the Weavers' daughters are now married and work in ag-related industries. Kristin works as an ag assistant for the Ag and Rural Affairs Committee under Sen. Noah Wenger. She continues to show for Weaverland at weekend competitions. Jodie works for Keystone Farm Credit.

Larry believes farming will continue to experience upheavals, and that family farms will find it harder and harder to survive.

But both Larry and Barb hope that stock from Weaverland Valley Farms will continue to be successful.

Barb's son has five-year-old twin daughters. Recently the Weavers gave the twins a heifer for a birthday present. The grandparents hope the heifer will be the start of helping the granddaughters attain college funds just like their own children had.

It thrills Barb when one of the first things her granddaughters ask about are the calves — a positive sign that Weaverland will continue to impress in the show ring.

Creative Sandwiches

Forget mundane bologna and cheese sandwiches. Try new combinations on different breads such as bagels, pita bread, croissants, English muffins, and wraps.

These sandwich ideas from our readers are thrilling examples of creativity and great taste.

Interestingly, many of these recipes include cheese. Perhaps it is because a survey of consumers showed that 61 percent ranked cheese as their most-craved food, beating out ice cream and even chocolate.

According to a recent study conducted by the American Dairy Association, the most passionate segment of cheese lovers, eat an average of 22 pounds of cheese annually, either off the block, on sandwiches or paired with their favorite sidekick.

Be daring. Try new varieties of cheese instead of sticking to tradition usage of American cheese. Diana Baldwin's Portabella Mushroom sandwich calls for Bleu cheese crumbles or Danish or Roquefort. If you aren't so adventuresome, you may substitute your favorite cheese for a bolder-flavored variety.

Not every entry includes cheese. A fascinating example of pairing new ingredients and producing great taste is Pete Jueress's favorite—peanut butter with Chinese Pea Pods. Veggie burgers and wraps continue to gain in popularity. Don't be afraid to try your own unique combination. Use what you have in your refrigerator and in your garden.

Today's selection of sandwiches are certain to tempt your taste buds from morning to midnight.

TURKEY BARBECUE SANDWICHES

1 cup chopped onion
1 cup ketchup
1 cup barbecue sauce

2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
3-4 pound boneless roast
14-18 hamburger buns

In slow cooker, combine first 11 ingredients, mix well. Add roast. Cover and cook on high 6-7 hours or until roast is tender. Remove roast; cool. Shred meat and return to sauce; heat through. Use a slotted spoon to serve on buns.

PETE'S CREATION

This may not be the most sensational sandwich ever made, but I like it. If you enjoy those celery sticks with peanut butter, which are served at parties and family gatherings, as much as I do, try this: Make a peanut butter sandwich preferably on toast or hardy bread or roll. Place fresh, crisp Chinese pea pods on top. Remember to rinse and clip off the ends of pea pods.

You will find it's much less fiberous and a lot sweeter than celery but the sensation is similar. Maybe this isn't for everybody, but it works for me.

PORTABELLA MUSHROOM SANDWICH

1 Kaiser or other crusty roll
2-3 Baby Bella mushroom caps, marinated in balsamic vinegar overnight
Bleu cheese crumbles, Danish or Roquefort
Spinach or leaf lettuce

Layer ingredients in roll and enjoy.

Here is Lisa's grand-prize entry so you don't need to wait for the brochure to savor this scrumptious sandwich.

GRILLED BLUE AND BRIE

8 slices pumpernickel or rye bread
4 tablespoons hot pepper jelly
½ cup crumbled blue cheese
½ cup chopped macadamia nuts
6 ounces Brie cheese, cut into 8 slices
4 tablespoons butter, softened

Spread 1 tablespoon jelly over four slices bread. Top each with 2 tablespoons blue cheese, 2 tablespoons nuts and 2 slices Brie. Place the remaining slices of bread on top and spread butter evenly over the top and bottom of each sanwich.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over low heat. Cook sandwiches, in batches if necessary, for 3-4 minutes per side, or until browned and the cheese is melted.

GETTING READY FOR SCHOOL DAYS

"School days....School days, those dear old golden rule days" are just around the corner. Summer vacation is about to come to a close. The fun-filled days of summer will give way to greater routine and guidelines. Sleep and play habits change. Wardrobes may change.

What is a Mom or Dad supposed to do?

What is a child to do?

Getting ready to begin or return to school is a big event.

In many homes, when the final school bell rings in the spring, a child's routine changes dramatically. The summer routine begins. Now as summer comes to a close, the child and parent must begin to re-establish the school routine. Routine is important to a child.

Recently, a mom told me, the first few days of school aren't important. The kids and teacher are getting to know each other.

Right and Wrong. Right, the kids and teacher are just getting to know each other. Wrong, the first days are very important. First impressions are vital to how the students and teacher interact. They set the tone for the rest of the school year. Routine impacts the relationship between parent, student, and teacher.

Routine presents a child with boundaries and dimension. Routines establish expectations for a child. He or she feels more secure in a situation surrounded by routine. Routine provides a sense of order at home and in the classroom.

Before the school year begins, parents and child need to agree on a routine at home. At-home routine includes setting a time to get ready and go to bed. Parent and child should allow time for pre-sleep time discussions. Fifteen minutes might be needed to decide the wardrobe for the next day, check the book bag or backpack. Are the necessary papers in their proper place? In most homes, early morning is not a good time to find permission slips and completed homework.

Getting up time must be established. Allow time for a nutritious breakfast, brushing teeth, braiding hair, etc. Plan for flexibility. Something unexpected will happen every morning. Plan on it.

Don't forget to allow time to look over each child. Make time to give hugs and smiles. Your child needs to make a good impression. He or she needs your approval as they leave for school.

Plan ahead. In one family I know, two weeks before school begins the family goes to the local Wal-Mart and buys needed school supplies. The student will need pencils, notebooks, paper on the first day of school. A prepared student makes a good impression on the teacher. The trip has become one of the harbingers of the school year.

Schools have routines. Teachers have routines. If possible, get a copy of the school's guidelines and policies before the school year begins. Review the rules. Children want to know what is expected before it happens. If a child is going to school for the first time or to a new school, being prepared is important. Children want to be in the know. The child will feel more secure.

Ask the school for a schedule of the daily routine. Find out if your child has early or late lunch. Then you can plan lunches (and breakfast) to suit your child's hunger pangs.

Older siblings can help with learning the rules and routine of the school. If possible, have an older child, walk the younger child through the school. In some school districts during the summer, the PTA/PTO and guidance department have days for new students to take a guided tour. Many times, students are the tour guides. If your school district offers pre-school tours, GO! Learn all you can about the school before the year begins.

Typically, summertime means freedom from the pressure of time schedules and routines. Returning to school means that routine will change. Changing routine doesn't have to lead to anarchy. Plan on change. Going back to a routine gives a child the impression that going to school is "their work." School is a function of life. Summer vacation is a time to change routine and refresh ourselves.

The patterns for living at home and in school make up the family routine. "School days. School days. Dear old golden rule days." The pace changes.

Fall Gardening Seminar

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Chester County will hold a fall gardening seminar taught by Penn State Master Gardeners, Saturday, September 25, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Master Gardeners will be discussing drying and preserving plant materials, renovating and establishing turf grass, and storing vegetables in root cellars. A talk on preserving the harvest will instruct homeowners on drying ornamentals and herbs.

Since fall is an ideal time for seeding and re-seeding lawns, a presentation on renovating and establishing turf grass will help homeowners recover from the recent drought conditions. Information will be provided on maintaining lawns and correcting lawn problems.

Prepare for the new millennium by learning how to store vegetables the old-fashioned way. Homeowners will learn how to use root cellars to store garden produce without depending on electricity.

Master Gardeners will also be holding a plant clinic during the morning. Homeowners are encouraged to bring specimens of diseased or damaged plants. The Extension Agent and Master Gardeners will provide diagnosis and advice on plant culture, diseases, insects and other pests.

Cost for the day is $5. The seminars will be held at the Chester County Government Service Center, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester. For more information or to register, contact the Extension Office at (610) 696-3500.

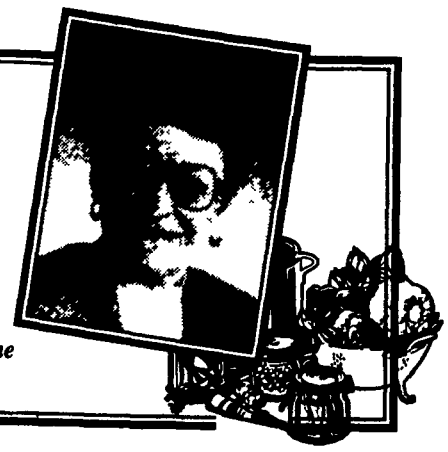
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Children often overlook one of the most plentiful, most refreshing and most needed beverage—water.

Water replenishes essential body fluids; it's important every day. Paula Peters, Kansas State Research and Extension Children's nutrition specialist, stresses that maintaining adequate fluids is especially important during warm weather months when children can easily become distracted by play, ignore their thirst, and become dehydrated.

The human body is approximately 60 percent water. Water transports oxygen and essential nutrients to all parts of the body and also carries and excretes waste products. It provides the medium in which the body's chemical reactions can occur; protects organs; lubricates joints; and regulates body temperature. Regulating temperature is especially important during summer months.

Young children don't tolerate heat as well as adults do. They actually generate more heat relative to their body size and they lose more water through sweating because they have more skin surface relative to their body size. They usually do not instinctively drink enough to replace lost fluids, so they need a parent or care giver's help.

How much water a child needs depends on his or her size and activity level. Remember, however, that even cool and refreshing exercise, such as swimming, can cause the body to sweat and lose water.

To help keep children from becoming dehydrated, parents and care givers should offer 10 to 14 ounces of cool or cold water one or two hours before play; offer it again 10-15 minutes before play, and schedule frequent breaks, every 15 minutes or so, to offer three to four ounces (about half a cup).

Plain cold water is preferred for fluid replacement because it is quickly absorbed by the body. Personalized water bottles can help make the beverage breaks appealing to children, the see-through bottles also can help parents gauge how much water their child is drinking.

Flavored beverages can be used to supplement fluid replacement but only if they have a sugar concentration of six to eight percent or less (15 to 18 grams of carbohydrate per eight ounces). Sports drinks fit this guideline; fruit juices and other sugar-flavored drinks may need to be diluted with an equal amount of water. Diluting concentrated beverages allow them to be absorbed more quickly.

Iced tea and soft drinks that contain caffeine, which acts as a diuretic, can cause the body to lose fluids. Bubbly carbonated soft drinks, which also may have a high sugar content, can upset children's stomachs.

One of the problems parents face is the fact that children may not think they need to drink as much water as they need. This is especially true of teens, who can lose track of time during ball practice or an extra-inning game. One way to check fluid needs is to weigh young athletes before and after practice of a game. For each pound lost, drinking two cups of fluid is recommended.

How can a parent tell if a child is dehydrated? Early signs of dehydration include a decreased frequency of urination; dark, concentrated urine (when well-hydrated, urine should be pale yellow) and a coated tongue. As dehydration increases, a child may feel nauseous; have muscle cramps or pain; clammy skin and/or skin that stays compressed when pinched; sunken eyes and a throbbing heat. If parents or other adults observe such symptoms seek medical advice promptly.

Orca "Killer" Whales

Although the orcas spend a lot of time hunting, they are also very playful. They race along the surface of the water and leap high out of the water

Whether playing or hunting, orcas perform the activities in a pod, or group. Pods have from five to 30 whales—including several adult females, young whales and one to three adult males If a pod becomes too big, some whales will break away to form a new pod.

Black-and-white in color, male orcas grow from 26 to 30 feet long and females from 23 to 26 feet long They weigh anywhere from 9,000 to 14,000 pounds A male orca's dorsal fin, which is on his back, can be 7 feet tall, while the female's fin is short and curves toward the back of her body Orcas' tail fins, or flukes, are very powerful They help the whales swim at speeds up to 30 miles an hour

With 40 to 50 sharp, curved, oval teeth, orcas can tear big chunks from the prey they catch They can open their jaws wide enough to swallow seals whole!

Their size, speed, strength and commitment to their pods all work together to make orcas great hunters

Aren't sheep hot with all that wool?

Wool, the sheep's equivalent to your hair, isn't like hair at all It has unique properties that help keep sheep cool in the summer and warm in the winter

Each individual strand of wool fiber is made up of proteins The length, thickness and curliness of the strands depend on the type of sheep Some sheep grow very fine textured fibers, others grow coarse, almost rough fibers

The special structure of the fibers lets the wool absorb lots of moisture from the animal s skin So, the fibers can "wick," or draw away moisture from the animal's body That helps the sheep feel cooler This ability to absorb water also helps the sheep from getting dehydrated as quickly on a scorching hot day — th e fibers retain the liquid, so there's always a little bit of moisture, called humidity, near the sheep's skin Wool fibers also have crimps in them that create thousands of air pockets in the animal's coat In the winter, these air pockets work like insulation to keep the sheep warm

So, if wool has all these benefits for sheep, why do farmers shear them? Two reasons Most sheep are raised for their wool Farmers need to give sheep a haircut once during the year to collect the wool fibers, so they can be spun into yarn Most farmers shear sheep in the spring, right before baby lambs are born (This is reason No 2)

Without all the extra wool, it's easier for the babies to nurse their mommies Plus, by the time winter rolls around, the sheep have grown back a nice, warm coat

American Gold Cup Is Sept. 16-19

DEVON — Two grand prix classes within two days highlight the all-jumper weekend at the American Gold Cup on Sept. 16-19 at the Devon show grounds.

The first grand prix is the $25,000 Welcome Stake, a World Cup qualifying class, on Friday evening.

As a World Cup qualifier, this grand prix draw the top jumpers in the country who are vying for a slot on the World Cup team that will compete next spring in Las Vegas against the top horses and riders from all over the world.

The American Gold Cup benefits The New Bolton Center and the Small Animal Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

The Gold Cup weekend boasts an exciting all-jumper format with more than $150,000 in prize money. The second grand prix of the weekend is the $60,000 American Gold Cup, Sunday at 2 p.m. Horses qualify for this class through their placings in the Friday evening class.

The 30th anniversary of the Gold Cup includes classes for all levels of jumpers from 4-year-olds in the International Futurity to the top open jumpers in the country competing in the two grand prix classes.

There's lost more than just the exciting jumper competitions to draw spectators to this unique event.

New Bolton Center is again presenting its very popular MASH tent at the show.

Children can take "injured" stuffed animals to the MASH tent, where they will be outfitted in surgical gowns to assist actual veterinarians in "treating" the toys. These procedures are very lifelike and give the children a terrific insight into the actual work done at this world famous clinic.

The Mummers Two Street String Band, in full regalia, will perform in exhibition Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon. These exciting musicians whirl and twirl in lavish costumes to catchy music, presenting a wonderful Philadelphia tradition.

Saturday is Children's Day, with pony rides, face painting and an exhibition of exotic birds.

Children who take a drawing of one of their pets receive free admission on Saturday, and this art show is later judged, with the winners receiving great prizes.

Children's Day expands into Sunday this year, with pony rides also now available on Gold Cup afternoon.

The hugely popular Celebrity Dog Show is judged in the rear adjacent to the Dixon Oval, with prizes for all kinds of categories, from Best Smile to the winner with the best tricks.

Mast of Ceremonies of the dog show this year is KYW-TV's Carol Erickson.

A new feature at the Gold Cup this year is the Young Jumper Championship carrying a $5,000 championship for 5-year-olds and a $7,500 championship for 6-year-old. This is the East Coast Championship Finals and is a qualifying event for the Monterrey Challenge for Young Horses to be held in Mexico in October.

The 4-year-old International Futurity will also be held at the Gold Cup again this year, along with classes for Amateur Owner Jumpers, Open Speed and Intermediate Jumpers.

Saturday evening features the $7,500 Show Jumping Hall of Fame Classic for amateur owner jumpers. This is always a tightly contested, exciting class.

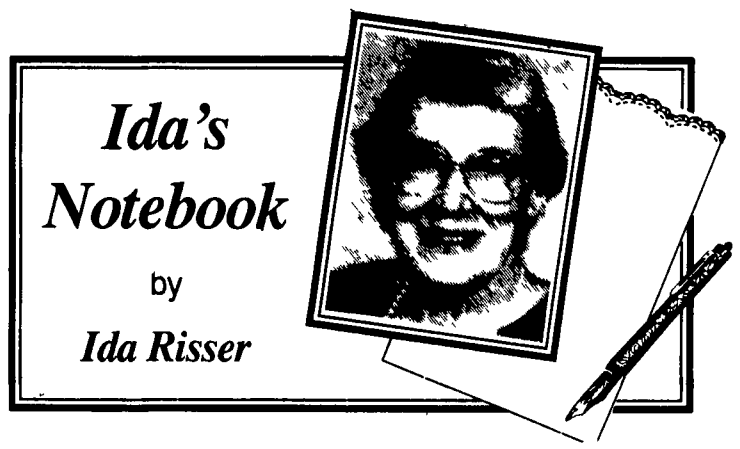
A side saddle is also on the schedule for Saturday evening, and the Gold Cup is the Zone 2 Finals for side saddle riders.

Boutique shopping for antiques, jewelry, crafts and gifts is offered in the fair area throughout the weekend.

A half-dozen elite antique dealers will set up shop in the fair area, adding their wares to the traditional mix of sporting clothes, fine jewelry, prints, paintings, and sculptures traditionally offered.

Boxes and reserved seats are still available. Reserved sets range in cost from $5 to $20 depending on the day. General admission is $5 for adults and $3 for children ages 5 to 12. Children under 5 are admitted free.

For tickets and information, call (610) 964-9316 or (610) 964-0550.



This morning I'd like to reminisce a bit due to something that happened yesterday.

It has been some 20 years since I had been called to the office of Lancaster Farming and asked to do the Sale Reports. I have always liked to attend public sales and so I said "yes." Of course, my reports are received over the telephone and not by attending the sales.

Sunday afternoon is used to line up the sales and by this I mean in the order that the auctioneers want to be called. There are usually a few at 6:30 a.m., some at 6:45 a.m. and some at 7 o'clock. This goes off and on Monday morning until after 10 o'clock. There are some call-backs in the afternoon and evening. I've had the opportunity to personally meet a few of the auctioneers who advertise in Lancaster Farming. One day a man knocked on my front door. He knew me but I did not know him. He had driven from New Jersey.

Another time I went to a produce auction in another county and the auctioneer introduced me to the crowd as "the lady who gets me up every Monday morning." That made me run for cover.

Some men will give results from a prepared list and others give them off the top of their heads. Often they are in the barn milking or even at a place of business where they work.

Yesterday, I phoned a man who told me that he was standing knee deep in a stream as he was damming it up. Well, I was sure that he had no prices for me but he said, "I brought by cell phone with me and my list of prices is in my pocket." So I reported his sale by typing it on my 1940 Royal typewriter.

When an auctioneer, who I've talked to for years, retires or dies, it is like losing a friend.

Born in 1904, Marguerite has packed almost a century of living into her memory.

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 9 celebrates its 75th anniversary. While many things have changed, the oldest member said, "Farm women stayed the same. They do the same things as 75 years ago. I appreciate that, I'm old-fashioned."

95-Year-Old Marks 75 Years As Farm Women Member

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Marguerite Kreider has been doing lots of celebrating recently.

The 95-year-old not only celebrated a birthday but also 75 years as a member of the Society of Farm Women #9.

Born in 1904, Marguerite has packed almost a century of living into her memory.

"I just live from day to day," Marguerite said of being celebrated as the oldest living member of her society.

She joined the society three months after it formed at the urging of her mother, the former Cora Warfel.

Marguerite grew up on a farm. When she was in eighth grade, her teacher encouraged her to take a test enabling her to be admitted to the Millersville Manor School. Everyday, she walked a mile to the trolley stop and paid the 40-cent toll for the 40-minute ride to school.

Expecting to work in an office, Marguerite took the commercial course, but when she graduated two and a half years later, she changed her mind and decided to become a teacher.

She taught school during the winter months and during the summer months studied at Millersville Normal School, now known as Millersville University.

After teaching two years, from 1923-1925, Marguerite married George E. Kreider of Conestoga.

"After I got married I couldn't teach anymore. That was the (school) rule; married women were not allowed to teach," Marguerite said.

The Kreiders lived comfortably on George's salary as a weaver for a nearby silk mill. The couple had three children. Jane was born in 1928.

Three years later, the couple had a surprise. Marguerite gave birth to twins.

"I didn't know I was having twins until they were born," Marguerite said of the era without the medical advantage of sonagrams.

The twins each weighed about five pounds. Marguerite remembers happy work-filled days while the children were small.

The family did not have electric in the house that she and her husband built. They carried water from an outdoor pump and used wood for fuel.

When the twins were 15 years old, the country was just getting over the Depression. The Kreiders converted their wood stove to coal and were in the middle of having new carpet installed in their home when George collapsed from an unexpected heart attack.

His death at 45 years of age was a shock and forced Marguerite back into the work world.

"I knew I needed to work," Marguerite said. "Insurance only amounted to enough to cover funeral expenses."

School protocol allowed widowed mothers to work as school teachers, and Margeurite considered returning to teaching.

"But I decided I needed a year-round job," she said. "Armstrong (a carpet company) was booming. So I went in, was tested, and hired."

Marguerite worked as an office clerk for 22 years until she retired in 1969.

Marguerite has five grandchildren, 10 great grandchildren, and one great-great grandchild. A recent five-generation picture was taken.

She drove car until she was 90 years old. About a year ago, Marguerite moved into the Lakes, a retirement complex at Willow Street. Although she likes it at the Lakes, she said, "It isn't home."

As she walks the halls daily for 20 minutes, she often thinks of the house that she and her husband built and that she still owns.

Dietary habits have changed a bit. She doesn't add salt to anything.

Commenting on changes to today's lifestyle, she said, "The way of living has changed. Families were closer when mothers did not work away, but there are so many things mothers must do today, such as transport the children to sports, games, and school affairs.

"Many families don't go to church. In my day, we grew up in the church. They took Bible reading out of school, but I hope they get it back."

While many things have changed, Margeurite said, "Farm women stayed the same. They do the same things as 75 years ago. I appreciate that, I'm old-fashioned.

"I liked Farm Women because they are always doing something for others," Marguerite said. She continues to hem diapers, pack fruit baskets for shut-ins.

The Society started with seven members and now has 20; three of the elderly died this past year.

Although eight of the members are in their 80s, the women continue to pack fruit baskets for shut-ins, hold garage sales to raise money to help with community needs and for world disasters such as that caused by Hurricane Mitch, make cancer pads and slippers, and create 100 pressure pillows from more than 30,000 stockings. Directions for the pressure pillows were previously received from the Red Cross about 75 years ago. Now many Farm Women members who are bedfast or suffer an injury appreciate using the pillows.

Some of the activities Farm Women members enjoy are playing Bingo at Conestoga View, spending a day at Lancaster General Hospital sewing, entertaining other societies, and attending shows at places such as Sight and Sound Millennium Theater.

Ida Jane Zercher, president of Society 9, said that members are celebrating Society 9's 75th anniversary throughout the year. Members kicked off the anniversary year by celebrating at a dinner held at a local restaurant.

"I've never missed a meeting since I joined 31 years ago," the 71-year-old Ida said. "My children always say that they can't ever plan anything for the second Thursday of the month because that is when Mom always goes to Farm Women."

As the youngest member of the society, Ida Jane values the presence of the older members such as Marguerite and said the society tries to accomodate members by providing transportation if neccessary.

Marguerite said, "That's what I like about Farm Women. They never change. They are always helping others."

Microwave Ovens Zapped By Age

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — We all know when age is creeping up on us — joints creak, hair grows gray, wrinkles appear. But how do you know when your microwave oven is nearing retirement age? A food scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences offers a few tell-tale signs of appliance decline.

"Microwave ovens of any price easily should last 10 years or more," said Swamy Anantheswaren, associate professor of food science. "But there will be changes in performance—usually a decline in power so gradual that consumers never notice it."

The Magnetron

Anantheswaran explains that the magnetron, the electrical element that converts electrical energy into microwave energy, will not maintain the same power levels over time. "If a new microwave oven boils a cup of water in one minute, after five or 10 years it may take 90 seconds," Anantheswaran said.

Although microwave ovens lose power as they age, Anantheswaran said most consumers unconsciously adjust cooking times without realizing the oven is not performing as efficiently.

"You can replace a magnetron in a microwave oven," Anantheswaran said. "But I don't recommend it. It would probably be cheaper to buy a new microwave oven."

Anantheswaran said magnetrons can interfere with cellular telephone transmissions because both products emit microwaves within the same frequency range.

The Power Fuse

All microwave ovens are outfitted with a power fuse designed to cut power to the oven if circuits overload. Anantheswaran said ovens can overheat and blow the power fuse. "If the oven is used to cook foods with very little moisture, the heat can build up in the oven cavity and overheat the circuits," he explains. "If you're cooking dry material, such as popcorn, give the oven a break before popping another bag."

A blown power fuse can be repaired for $10 to $20, but Anantheswaran said consumers should not try to repair the microwave oven themselves. "These appliances are not meant to be serviced at home," he said. "The problem may be something other than a fuse."

Gasket Leakage

Anantheswaran said microwave ovens can leak microwave radiation if the gaskets around the door and other parts of the oven become worn or pitted.

Anantheswaran said consumers should consult an appliance repair shop to replace a worn gasket.

Carousels

Anantheswaran said rotating carousels can jam, particularly when rectangular casserole dishes are too large to be turned by the carousel. "Most glass platforms are shaped like a shallow bowl," he said. "In some ovens you can flip the glass platform over, allowing the carousel mechanism to freely rotate beneath the glass. The casserole dish won't turn, but the heating will be the same."

Anantheswaran, who has used the same microwave oven in his home for the past 12 years, said homeowners should feel no rush to replace older ovens if they need minor repair. "If you are used to the way your car runs, why replace it?" he said. "It gets you where you want to go."

Pennsylvania Poultry Ambassador Sarah Woodling spent Aug. 16-19 at Hersheypark's Town Fair to tell more than 1,000 visitors daily about the poultry industry. Sarah's display included hatching chicks, cages showing a variety of breeds, the Lancaster County Poultry Association video, feed samples, and charts on egg quality and grading. This was Sarah's last appearance as ambassador for the poultry industry that she represented for the past year. Sarah is a freshman at Penn State's Honor's College, where she is majoring in food science with a poultry emphasis and minoring in vocal music performance.

Avoid Being Crammed

HUNTERDON, N.J. — Phone bills are a routine expense in most household budgets. Unfortunately, some people may be paying more than necessary. A new word has recently been added to the vocabulary of words used to describe consumer frauds: cramming.

This does not mean studying frantically for a final exam. Cramming refers to unexplained charges on your phone bill for services never ordered, authorized, received or used.

Most of these scams occur through the use of an 800 number. Others are initiated by contests or sweepstakes. Sometimes a one-time charge for entertainment services will be crammed onto your phone bill. Other times, monthly recurring charges are crammed. Cramming of monthly recurring charges falls into two general categories: club memberships such as travel clubs, and telecommunications products or service programs, such as voice mail, paging and calling cards.

Want to avoid being crammed? Follow this advice from the Federal Trade Commission (FTC):

- Be aware that a local company may bill for services provided by other companies. Your local phone bill may include charges for long distance telephone calls, information or entertainment services accessed through 900 numbers or club mermberships, and non-basic telecommunications services like paging.
- Carefully read the fine print before you fill out contest forms, especially if they ask for your phone number. Likewise, read the fine print before you place a call in response to a sweepstakes promotion.
- Be cautious about calling unfamiliar 800 numbers. Be especially wary if you're told to enter codes, leave your name, or answer "yes" to prompts. Unscrupulous entertainment providers may use this ruse to send you a bill.
- Check your phone bill every month for unfamiliar charges. Sometimes, a call placed to a toll-free number may be fraudulently billed as a 900 number, collect call or international call.
- Examine your phone bill for recurring monthly charges. These charges typically appear as "Miscellaneous Charges and Credits."

For a free copy of the publication, "Cramming: Mystery Phone Charges," write to Consumer Response Center, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, DC, 20580, or check the Web site <www.ftc.gov>.

It belonged to his grandfather who earned his living as a professional tailor. J. Freed also learned to sew on it and used it until about six years ago. Although the cabinate is not as ornate as some home models that were manufactured, it is heavier and more a more durable machine made for commercial use. He would like to sell it to someone who will use it for sewing and not as a lawn ornament or a fish tank stand. Send an offer to J. Freed, P.O. Box 224, Wallingford, PA.

Food for Thought

Well, Dad (or Grandpa), it's your turn to watch the youngsters for the day. As you go about your daily activities with your preschoolers, keep in mind the physical and developmental characteristics of this age group that affect what and how they eat.

First, notice their size. Everything about them is small, including their stomachs. Serve small portions — one tablespoon of a food item for each year of age. Forget the rule that they must finish everything on their plate because there are children in the world who are starving. Research has shown that a young child who is encouraged to eat just until full will listen to body signals and not overeat.

Dads may also forget that feedings need to be more frequent. Preschoolers enjoying their time playing games and having fun sometimes don't pay attention to hunger signals. You may notice your child becoming irritable and impatient. It is important to offer snacks between meals. Be sure to offer healthy choices like fruit, a piece of cheese, or milk and graham crackers. A good portion of your child's daily intake is consumed in the form of snacks. You want to offer foods that will provide the vitamins, minerals and energy that support healthy growth, not empty calorie "junk foods" and soft drinks. You are helping set good food habits for later years as well.

Little people also have small fingers and hands. Give them child-sized dishes and utensils. Using a small glass their hand will fit around or a cup with a handle to avoid spills.

Likewise, finger foods will lessen the frustration of trying to manipulate silverware.

Remember that "food jags" are normal at this age, so your son or daughter may request the same foods over and over. It's best not to get into a power struggle over forcing something different. Eventually your child will move on to other foods. On the other hand, keep introducing new foods, even when they aren't accepted immediately. It may take as many as 8 or 10 times before the food is eaten. Keep putting a spoonful of those peas or carrots on their plate. One day you might be surprised.

Your job is to offer a balance from all food groups throughout the day—breads and cereals, vegetables, fruits, dairy and meats. Ninety-one percent of children are not consuming the recommended 3 servings of vegetables and 2 servings of fruits per day. Some serve raw carrots with dip or celery filled with peanut butter as a snack, as well as cooked vegetables at dinner. Offer a small banana or 1/2 cup of juice between meals, and a peach or canned pineapple with lunch. Healthy eating requires a conscious effort, and is too important to leave to chance. The vitamin A and C present in dark green, yellow and orange fruits and vegetables will help your child resist infections.

Watching what you and others eat is also a big influence on eating habits of the young. So join your youngster in a yogurt snack or some apple slices. Children at this age often enjoy helping to prepare the food. Take the extra time occasionally to let them stir, measure or pour. Expect spills and messes as they develop fine motor coordination. Then go on a pretend picnic together. Eating with friends who like foods that are different will also expand your child's choices.

Teach good hygiene habits early—washing hands before touching food, and brushing teeth regularly, especially after sweet snacks. Health and safety is an important consideration in what you serve your child also. Children under 2 years of age may choke on round pieces of hot dog, nuts, popcorn, raw carrots, celery, whole grapes, peanut butter or round candies. Immune systems are not as strong as an adult, so an undercooked hamburger, raw egg yolk, or unpasteurized cider may result in serious illness or even death. Don't take a chance! Cook protein foods to well done, and wash and peel all raw fruits and vegetables.

Eating and food preparation can be part of your quality time together. Make it fun and relaxed. Appetites vary naturally, so don't worry if your child doesn't eat heartily at all meals. Your role is to offer a healthy variety of foods throughout the day. Allow your child the option of what and how much to eat. Explore the world of good nutrition together.

Thanks to Susan Ehst who writes that it is a known fact that cats do not like the smell of citrus. New Technology Allows Quicker Fire-Fighting Response

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

WEST SALISBURY (Somerset Co.) — The first dry hydrant in a series planned by the Salisbury Volunteer Fire Department demonstrated how the Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative successfully brought interested parties into partnership.

Salisbury was the first Somerset County fire company to place a dry hydrant in a river — the Casselman.

A dry hydrant is a system of PVC pipe permanently installed in a pond or lake. "Dry" means it is not pressurized like a fire hydrant in town, but can deliver large quantities of water over an extended period of time to fires in rural areas.

There is a growing need for more dry hydrants because the population in outlying districts is expanding in areas served by the Somerset REC.

Somerset REC, the fire company, the municipality Natural Resource Conservation Service, Soil Conservation District and New Lexington Fire Equipment are involved in dry hydrant emplacements.

The Salisbury company has a director, Jason Blocher, who happens to be a REC member. The man's interest in dry hydrants was whetted from information he read while perusing the states cooperative's monthly magazine.

Blocher initiated a call to Larry Shober at Somerset REC. to learn more. Thus Blocher became chairman of the projects that will greatly benefit his community.

Before the physical undertaking got under way Elk Lick Township has agreed to provide needed heavy equipment and materials.

Besides the backhoe, Elk Lick purchased the pipe and fittings; concrete for a pad where the hydrant head is accessed and standard size rock.

The Soil Conservation District actively participates both in planning and construction of dry hydrants.

In the Casselman River project, for instance, the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), had specific requirements relating to the stream channel. The SCD was able to secure necessary DEP permits so the undertaking could move ahead.

"Our role is to initiate the survey, design, and inspect during construction," reported Don Williams, SCD engineer and strategist for the unique venture.

The REC procured the dry hydrant kit with hydrant head and underwater strainer at cost from New Lexington Fire Equipment. Likewise, it will assist any county fire company that decides to participate in the dry hydrant program.

Thus, on the bank a precariously positioned backhoe operated by Jim Bodes, was repeatedly directing a mechanical arm's small bucket under the river bed. Its teeth loosened sod and rock to unload on nearby land.

Bodes' goal was make a four-foot deep hole for the strainer and trench to lay the pipe. The strainer would ultimately rest atop a 10-inch rock layer and be covered by almost two feet of R-4 rock. It therefore, is protected from debris, especially during a flood.

Nearby, other firemen smoothed the pipe ends and prepared them with cleaner and glue for a permanent union with the strainer and additional sections of pipe.

At intervals Bodes stopped the machine so a person standing in the water with the measuring rod could ascertain depth readings while Williams monitored the proceedings.

The pipe would follow the trench, angle at the elbow and ascend for a ground clearance of two or three feet so the head was lower than the tanker's intake.

When the corps of men bearing the dry hydrant on their shoulders, descended the riverbank to place the unit in the water, they were a sight to behold. The length of pipe borne was some 50 feet, according to Don Williams.

Although the program is gaining recognition, only five Somerset County companies have so far hopped aboard.

Farm ponds often make good locations if the landowner gives a thumbs up to the arrangement. The thing is his fire insurance costs may drop significantly because the presence of a dry hydrant in all seasons, renders the pond a quick, very accessible source of water to fight a fire.

"The landowner has to give this thing his blessing if you are talking about a farm pond," state Larry Shober.

"The body of water must be big enough to sustain pumping 1,000 gallons of water a minute or 30,000 gallons in two hours," reported the expert.

"It's a very worthwhile project," observed Williams. "It is a situation where everybody wins and I would like to see more dry hydrants around the county."

Blocher says the Salisbury fire company is currently planning for six dry hydrants in rural districts it serves.

"I would like to see three or four go in this year," he reported.

The drought conditions actually were an asset to the undertaking in a streambed the fireman said. The water level was much lower than normal.

A few volunteers backflushed and tested the new system. "The hydrant works great," they announced proudly.

Because the strainer and pipe are well below the surface, in winter when ice forms on the river, instead of cutting a hole in the ice, they will pull to the hydrant head with 618-1, connect the hose and start pumping water.

The 1,000 gallon tanker in one minute, should reach its capacity.

Williams says people should look at the dry hydrant in West Salisbury to get a clear idea of how they work.

"It was installed properly and the firemen had no problem getting volunteers," the inspector said.

After a four-foot hole is dug in the Casselman River bed, along with a trench, volunteers descend the river bank with 50 feet of pipe and a strainer to physically install a dry hydrant in West Salisburg, Somerset County. The dry hydrant program is sponsored by the Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative.

Trial Gardens Go On The Road

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Every year, experts in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences plant the seeds for thousands of flower and vegetable varieties in the university's Horticulture Trial Gardens to determine which plants look great, last longest, grow fastest or deliver the greatest yield.

Now, Penn State is taking these trials on the road to gardens across the state for an evaluation project call the Gardener Selects program.

"We're planting 20 to 30 of the best new cultivars from the Trial Gardens flower plots in gardens at public parks or Penn State Cooperative Extension offices throughout Pennsylvania." says Robert Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture. "These growing trials will give us valuable information on how varieties fare in different climates, soils and environments."

Berghage says 22 annuals and six perennials will be tested this year at 28 new locations. The Penn State Trial Gardens, established in 1933, also will remain as a trial site. "At every garden, all the varieties will be carefully evaluated by specially trained Penn State Master Gardeners," Berghage explains. "At the end of the season, the evaluations will be collated and analyzed to pick the 'Gardener Selects Plants of the Year'."

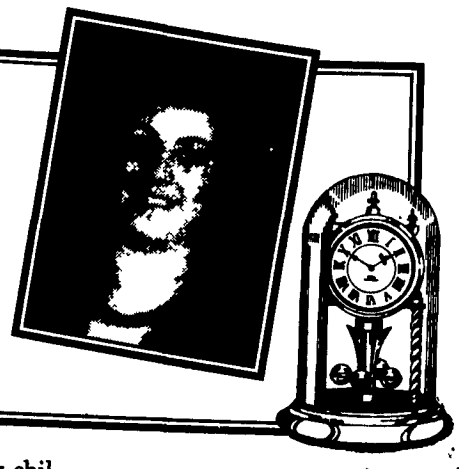
Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



As families are sending children back to school, they are presented with an opportunity—a teachable moment. Back to school days are great times to introduce or reinforce good money management skills with youngsters.

Most students and their parents will be shelling out a lot of money this time of year for new clothes, sports and other activity fees, study supplies, and even meals and transportation. Take time in the next few days to sit down with your school-age children and review the costs that have been or will be incurred. I encourage families to set a budget per person for school clothes and then allow older elementary school-aged children and teens to spend that money. It only takes one or two experiences of buying one "really cool" designer label shirt or skirt instead of four or five less trendy pieces of clothes to teach a lesson.

Families that I know who do this successfully give their children two opportunities during the year to do clothes shopping. This gives kids a chance in January to make better decisions if they spent unwisely in the fall.

Another area where budgeting can be introduced is with after-school activities and fees. One of the best things that my parents did for me as a teenager was to set the limit that they would only pay for one set of lessons per week. That decision forced me to choose what I valued most and to eliminate some things from my schedule (or pay for them with my own money). Parents may also set a dollar value limit on fees and equipment costs. Then a child has the option to be involved with several less-expensive activities or one pricey endeavor.

In all these cases, I like to present children with the option of earning their own money to cover things not in the family budget. I have found that things paid for with hard-earned money are more cared for and more appreciated than those given to a child.

Families across income levels can make these decisions. Even if you are fortunate enough to have the income to provide all the material things a child could want, it may not be in their best interest to do so. You could choose to invest that money in long-term goals like schooling rather than in short-term purchases. You could donate money to a worthwhile charity rather than buying another electronic gizmo for the game room or buying some top-of-the-line piece of equipment for a child's sport.

Those are big ticket decisions, but even in small areas, students can realize savings. Instead of buying sodas in the machines at school (which probably finance the sports, music, or family and consumer sciences programs), kids could pick up cases at the grocery store when they're on sale. If your kids get munchies during the day and you find yourself investing in those single serving snack packs, slow down. Check out the real costs. Usually you can buy regular size boxes of snack cereals, cookies, puddings and candy bars and divide them yourself to save money. Decide to reward your kids when they discover ways to save money. If they come up with an idea and agree to live by it, give them the money they save to use as they wish.

Once monetary limits are established, give children as much freedom as possible to make choices within the limits. That way they are responsible for the outcomes. If you set the limits and also do all the choosing, the children learn very little and often feel angry. The whining and complaints decrease when they have power within the limits to choose.

Of course, if this budgeting concept is a new thing for your children (and sticking to your limits is a new thing for you as a parent), you can expect short-term rebellion. Psychologists warn that in the face of change, people will often become MORE rebellious for a short period of time, thinking that "I just need to push a little harder and things will revert to the old ways." Be firm in your plans. You can always reevaluate mid-year. You can also present ways for your novice financial managers to earn some money "in house" if the limits seem to be cutting out a lot of typical provisions.

Get Real Facts

DUSHORE (Sullivan Co.) — Noreen Rouse is the Sullivan County Dairy Princess. She sends some important dairy facts to help people know more about the dairy industry.

Did you know that Pennsylvania ranks second in ice cream production producing 72.8 million gallons; fourth in butter, producing 80.9 million pounds; fourth in milk production; and fifth in cheese, producing 348.3 million pounds.

It is great to know that the dairy industry is the #1 agricultural industry in the state.

Pennsylvania boasts 11,500 commercial dairy farms, and an average herd is 51 cows. An average production per cow is 16,009 pounds or 1,861 gallons. In 1994, 10.2 billion pounds of milk was produced. The leading counties in milk production are Lancaster, Franklin, Bradford, Berks and Chester.

Here are some facts about cows:

Cows have 32 permanent teeth; a dairy cow eats 90 pounds of food and drinks 50 gallons of water (nearly a bathtub full). Cows spend about 6-1/2 hours eating each day, and Holsteins are the most common breed.

That's just the beginning of the many dairy facts that Noreen will be telling people during her reign. Here's a poem called "A Farmer's Prayer" that Noreen thinks is really cute and true.

A Farmer's Prayer

I long for a cow of modern make,
That milks five days
for leisure's sake,
That sleeps on Saturday and snores on Sunday and starts
again on Monday.
I wish for a herd that know the way
To wash each other day by day
That never bothers to excite us with Chills, fever or mastitis.
I sigh for a new and better breed that Takes less grooming and less feed
That has the reason,
wit and wisdom
To use the seat and flushing system.
I pray for a weekend,
long and clear
Less work to do from year to year
And a cow that reach production peak
All in a 5-day working week.

Gravely Tractor Club Holds National 'Mow-In'

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The Gravely Tractor Club of America proved one thing last week at the third National "Mow-In," held in fields owned by Antram Enterprises. They go whole hog or nothing to hang out with a Gravely machine.

By the time Saturday rolled around, attendance had surpassed 1,000, according to Bob Antram who was hosting the four-day event with his wife Roberta, son David and wife Jodell (Rhoads) Antram — the wizard of preliminary paper work and complimentary packets.

"We knew how many registered," Bob Antram said, "but we had no idea what the local crowd would be. It's mind boggling," he said, in an obvious satisfaction.

The Antrams' Gravely Dealership is two miles from town.

Mark Bricker from Hudson, New Hampshire, rattled off more information about Gravelys than a person could assimilate in a short time, because he has amassed Gravely literature and knows a lot.

"They last forever," the 37-year-old man said. He was wearing a T-shirt patterned with a one-wheel Gravely across the chest.

Bricker recalls the very day he began collecting the printer material — September 13, 1995.

Now, with the 100 different attachments he also owns, Bricker declares two-semi-trailers would be needed to transport the stuff to a show.

Instead, he plans in a couple of years, to build a museum, where in New Hampshire's White Mountains Gravely equipment will be featured.

According to sources, the first Gravely tractor was a regular, push-by-hand plow utilizing an Indian motorcycle engine. It was mounted on a tractor wheel with belts. As improvements were made, the Gravely tradition was born out of the home garden cultivation of Benjamin Franklin Gravely. He knew there had to be an easier way to get the job done.

Gravely tractors were first manufactured in Dunbar, W. Va. as early as 1918. In 1968 the manufacturing, operations moved to Clemmons, N.C., remained until purchased by Ariens Company, and, in 1982, relocated to Brillion, Wisconsin.

Antram noted that Gravely Mow-Ins are designed for collectors and show the general public the versatility of durability of Gravely equipment.

John Langille of Hockessin, Del. possesses the oldest known water-cooled Gravely Model D. Langille displayed the garden cultivator at this year's event. Reportedly, it still is operable.

Sickle bars were introduced in 1928. Eventually on the market came rotary mowers, chain, and circular saw attachments, sprayers, snowblades, snowblowers and four-wheel tractors which gave the Gravely product respect at outlets around the world.

On Thursday the group, which used the Somerset Ramada Inn for headquarters, toured Fleetweeod Camper Manufacturing Plant and ate supper at Hoss's Steak House.

They toured Leiss Tool and Die Company on Friday where they focused on the Jenny Pressure Washer division; visited Gilmour Manufacturing; the famed Falling Water designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, and Seven Springs Mountain Resort. Dinner was at the Oakhurst Tea Room.

On Saturday, after dinner at the Ramada, a "Grand Gravely Auction" was held which benefitted the Gravely Tractor Club of America treasury, following the Mow-In where High Ridge 4-H Club offered burgers, hot dogs, soft freeze, and so forth.

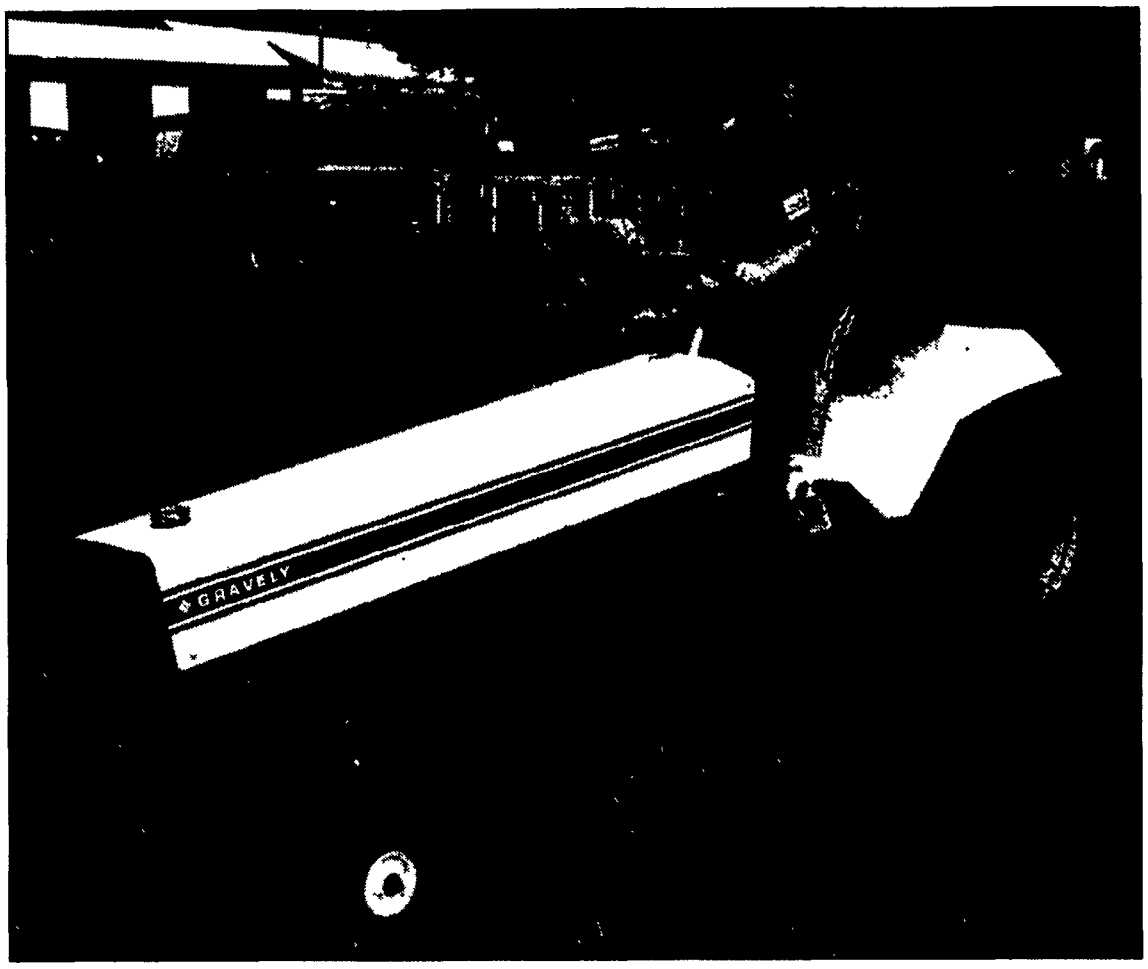
A Sunday buffet at the Ramada concluded the fun.

Guests had come from some 25 states including California Alabama and Georgia.

The Antrams were elated. "We are pleased with the turnout," the two men said. "We had good tours. People didn't realize we did things like this."

"One guy couldn't pull it off," they acknowledged. "The employees helped."

Roberta Antram, however, was observant of diehard fans' wives. "I never saw more patient women," she reported about visiting soulmates. "But after two days of machines, they went antiqu'ing," she said laughing.



Tylor Neil, Hockessin, Del., happily tears around in a Gravely dragster at the third annual "Mow-In" of the Gravely Tractor Club of America, held near Somerset.

Kate Heeter and Jodi Fetterolf, officers of the West Snyder FFA Chapter of Beaver Springs, attended the 1999 Washington Leadership Conference from July 20-27 in the nation's capital.

Kate serves the West Snyder FFA Chapter as the vice president of community development and Jodi is the 1999-2000 West Snyder FFA chaplain.

The conference was an activity of the National FFA Organization in cooperation with the United States Department of Education.

The week-long program helps FFA members improve their leadership skills and prepare for leadership roles in their chapters, communities, and careers. Conference participants attended workshop sessions on self-confidence, goal setting, and team building and participated in discussions on personal development, motivation, and citizenship.

"We live in an increasingly competitive world," said Dr. Larry Case, National FFA adviser and coordinator, agricultural and rural education with the U.S. Department of Education. "Tomorrow's leaders must develop skills in those areas to effectively compete. Every student leaves the Washington Leadership Conference with an advantage because it gives those young people renewed self-worth and valuable insight for productive citizenship."

The National FFA Organization coordinates the Washington Leadership Conference which attracts participants from across the country. This summer, more than 2,000 FFA members will attend one of the conference's seven week-long sessions.

Students also increased their understanding of the nation's heritage with visits to Mount Vernon, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt memorials, and other historic sites in Washington, D.C.

Jodi Fetterolf received a scholarship from the Pennsylvania FFA Alumni to attend the Washington Leadership Conference. For Kate Heeter, the trip was sponsored by the West Snyder FFA Chapter.

Jersey Takes Supreme At Bedford County Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Again, a colored breed took center stage as the supreme dairy cow at the Bedford County Fair.

A Jersey, Spring Valley Starbuck Francine, owned by Ashley and Kristen Fisher of Hardcore Farm in New Enterprise, took home the title. Francine was shown by the girls' father, Keith Fisher.

"I was a little surprised at the outcome," Fisher said. "I felt it would be between Francine and the Guernsey shown by the Sniders, and I felt the Guernsey would take the championship."

Owned by Jan Snider, the Guernsey, Sniders Opp Georgie, took reserve.

Fisher operates a milking parlor farm, milking cows for 4-H members who want to raise a dairy cow but do not live on a farm or for hobby farmers.

Francine also took the reserve championship at the Morrison Cove Open Dairy Show. She will compete at the Maryland State Fair and the All-American Show in Harrisburg this fall.

Other cattle competing for the championship were Holstein, Erin Shaw, Williamsburg, Linden-Loh Linda Sara and reserve champion Kenny Stanton, Clearville, Manor Meadows Bell Michaela.

Dr. Marc Finder outdid his 1998 bid of $1,700 by paying $2,100 for this year's dairy wagon. Finder is shown here behind the supreme champion Jersey cow. Others in the photo are Keith Fisher, owner of the supreme champion, Jennifer Stup and Cindy Mearkle, dairy maids, Barb Mearkle, dairy committee, and John Davis, who donated the wagon.

Keith Fisher showed the supreme champion, a Jersey, at the Bedford County Fair. Fisher stepped in for his daughters who were both busy with other summer activities.

Dr. Finder Outdoes Last Year's Bid

In an attempt to outdo last year's outstanding bid of $1,700 for a dairy basket, Dr. Marc Finder bid $2,400 for a wagonload of dairy goodies at this year's event.

Since they could never be a part of the livestock auction, junior dairy showmen had wanted to somehow have a way to raise funds for various dairy projects at the fair.

Last year, a dairy basket of many types of dairy items such as chocolate, cheese, milk or ice cream gift certificates, chips for cheese dipping, etc. was put together and auctioned off following the livestock sale at the fair.

This year, it was a dairy wagon, donated by local farmer, John Davis, which went up for sale.

"I had to outdo my last bid," said Finder, the local hospital emergency room director and physician. "When I first came to Bedford County, I was amazed at how hard farmers are willing to work. In some small way, I feel I am helping them by this purchase."

Accompanying the basket of dairy goodies was local dairymaids Cindy Mearkle and Jennifer Stup, and the supreme champion Jersey cow shown by Keith Fisher of New Enterprise.

UNDERSTANDING THE PROBLEM – FINDING A SOLUTION
CLYDE A. B. MYERS
Berks County Extension Agent
In Consultation With
Dr. Charlie Pitts
Penn State Entomologist

Agriculture production continues to change with the economics of size, demanding more animals in today's animal production operations. With the increases in animal numbers, situations have developed which can create conflicts between farmers and homeowners who live in agricultural production area. Some of these conflicts include odors, use of pesticides, movement of trucks and machinery on roads, and flies.

Flies have taken advantage of ideal environments, in and around animal facilities, to breed and populate in large numbers. At times, flies create nuisances to neighbors, especially when manure, laden with quantities of pupae and larvae, is spread. With some fly populations' resistance to today's insecticides, IPM (integrated pest management) activities must be developed and used to solve the problem.

A female fly is capable of producing up to six batches of 75 to 200 eggs at 3- to 4-day intervals. Larvae (maggots) hatch in 12 to 24 hours. In 4-7 days and three growth stages, larvae grow into pupa (dark reddish-brown cigar-shaped case about 1/8-inch long). Adult flies emerge in about 14 days. Generations overlap, with all stages present at the same time. The entire cycle can be as short as 10 days if temperatures are 85 degrees and above, and 45 days at 60 degrees F.

Flies need organic matter (manure, food wastes, poorly managed compost piles, etc.) that has 50-80 percent moisture to lay their eggs. These areas must be near a food source. Bedded animal packs, calf hutches and kennels, and poultry layer and pullet houses with in-house manure storage provide the best environments. But even if fly numbers increase around farm facilities, neighbor complaints do not normally occur until manure is spread. When adult flies emerge, they head for the closet white object (flies associate white with needed warmth), which is normally a neighbor's house.

With more large animal facilities, espcially poultry layer/pullet operations, more flies are present in our agriculture areas. With insecticide resistance, flies have become a problem. Three areas receiving major concentration: using IPM in the buildings to keep fly numbers at reasonable levels, handling manure, and controlling flies with natural traps.

One area of research relates to handling the fly, pupa, and larvae-laden manure outside the building.

Research evaluating tillage methods and their effects on keeping larvae and pupae from emerging have been completed. Findings show moldboard plows were the most effective, chisel lows were next in effectiveness, and disking did not stop emergence of flies. It was not possible to completely stop larvae and pupae from developing unless ground and manure were compacted substantially. This, of course, is not an acceptable practice for crop production. To lower the number of flies causing conflicts in the neighborhood when manure is spread, especially if manure contains high numbers of larvae and pupa, consider the following: spread manure when the outside temperature is under 50 degrees F and lower if possible. Adult flies are less active, and pupa and larvae take longer to develop or may not develop at all. Also, neighbors are less likely to be involved in outdoor activities. Any tillage is better than piling or just spreading the manure. Plowing will give best results.

• Covering manure with plastic is an alternative. Poultry manure is piled in rows or in a trench-type silo, then black plastic is placed over the pile. A layer of soil is placed on the ends of the plastic to seal the pile. Other ways to seal the manure may be used. Keep manure under the plastic for 10-12 days. Using plastic should be considered when fly control in the house is not working – manure needs to be hauled, and the fields where manure is to be spread is near houses. The gases, which form under the plastic, will kill larvae, pupa, and adult flies. Manure can be spread anytime.

By building a trench-type silo with a cement bottom and about 3-foot - 5-foot sites, manure can be removed from the house on a weekly basis. Placed under the plastic, this eliminates all stages of flies and the need for fly control in the house. Pullet growers should consider this option as turnover and complete clean-out every 18-20 weeks does not allow for the use of natural pests. Using fans for drying is probably not economically feasible because of production timetable and lower quantities of manure.

• Parasitic wasps can play an important role in poultry IPM program and are helping reduce fly populations in high-rise poultry houses. The parasite is less less than 1/16 inch long. The female wasp lays eggs in the pupal case and kills the developing fly. Present research suggests placing one parasite per bird in the pit areas where they will not be disturbed by dropping manure. Place the first group of wasps in the house five to seven days after the birds arrive. Release the same number each week for the next three weeks.

Keeping manure dry is another key element. Leaks in waterers are the major source of wet manure (perfect place for flies to lay their eggs) and should be checked daily. Dry manure will cone, with proper ventilation, more drying will occur. This deters flies from breeding and promotes development of beneficial mites and beetles. Many producers have added circulating fans in the pit areas to concentrate air on manure and promote drying. Research is being conducted to determine appropriate size, number, and placement of fans. Turning the manure for a compost-like activity has proven beneficial. A machine which is adapted for a skid loader mixes and turns manure onto the adjacent manure row. This IPM activity can only be done until manure row is a certain height. The machine is expensive as cost ranges around $10,000.

• If a complete clean-out is not required, leaving some manure which includes beneficial insects is suggested. A 10-foot long pile of manure in each house section and each row will help beneficial insects to re-establish much faster.

It is essential to monitor fly populations. Posting white 3-inch by 5-inch cards on a weekly basis at different areas will show fly level numbers. Another method to monitor fly numbers is to open a fly strip and hold in both hands while walking to the far end of the house. Turn the strip and return to the front of the house. Counting and recording the number of flies once each week will help establish the effectiveness of your IPM activities.

Working with neighbors must also be a consideration. Flies will not leave the poultry house but are drawn out via exhaust fans. If fly numbers in the house get out of control, residents living close to you could see an increase in the number of these pesky critters. Research has shown that use of pheromone flytraps placed about 15 feet from the building at each bank of fans will stop many from invading your neighbors.

The common housefly has found an ideal home in some of our farm facilities. Dealing with flies today takes more than occasional spraying. Finding ways to lower fly numbers and stop neighbor conflicts is essential to the agriculture industry.

Penn State Posts Lamb Sale Results

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the results of it's 21st Performance-Tested Ram Lamb Sale Saturday, Aug. 7.

The day's activities were held at Penn State's Ag Arena beginning with the Pennsylvania's Sheep Producers' Field Day. A Skill-a-Thon was well received by the youth and was educational for both the contestants and the observers. The Field Day committee–Jo Anne Evans, Bob Calvert, Dick Kuzemchak, Don Hunter and Dirk Wise – presented prizes to the more successful participants.

Dr. Tom Drake, diagnostic veterinarian at Penn State, discussed "Prevention and Treatment of Foot Problems."

Guy Flora, Cardington, Ohio, editor of The Shepherd Magazine and Region 1 representative to the ASI executive committee, led a discussion on "Current Issues Facing the Sheep Industry."

Dr. James Evans discussed his flock health program with the audience.

The sale began promptly at 2 p.m. Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, informed the crowd that he is working toward the construction of a new Meat Animal Evaluation Center. Secretary Hayes visited with many sheep producers during the sale.

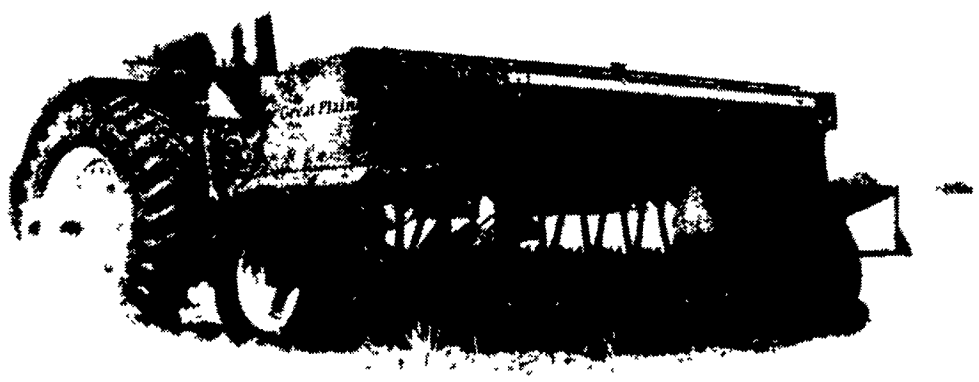
Dare To Be *Un*conventional



There's Nothing Conventional About Farming Anymore...

...why should you be satisfied with yesterday's conventional-tillage drill? The new 1300 drill is anything but conventional. The 1300 gives you the latest innovations previously available only on big drills - including hydraulic down pressure on the openers, a single-point spring adjustment, and a 3.24 bushel per foot seed box. While the competition is stuck in conventionally tilled fields, the 1300 is tough enough to handle minimum-till. You don't farm by somebody else's rule-book. Break with convention and contact your Great Plains dealer today to learn more about the 1300.

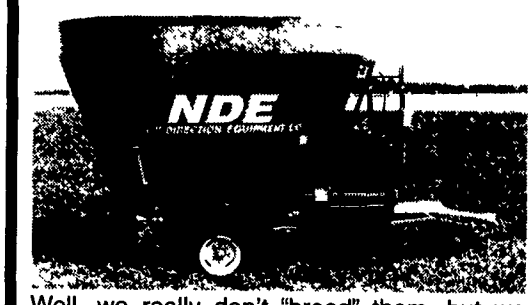
We Breed Champions, Too!



Well, we really don't "breed" them, but we feel each mixer that we produce is a champion in every way. We take great care in designing each machine before it is built. We also track each machine after it leaves our facility, making sure it is delivered to you on time, and ready to go to work the minute it is off the truck. We then follow the life of the Mixer, making sure that the customer is happy with the machine, long after the sale. If you want a company that takes as much pride in their product as we know you do in yours, give us a call.

Purchase Heavy Duty Rock Collection Equipment From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today! Remove Field Rock & Save Your Equipment. Check Our Finance Plans.

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position. And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range.

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding. They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last.

From leveling Silage in Bunks and Grading Excavation to Snow Removal, See Binkley & Hurst For Your Needs!

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need. This is the most rugged rock picker on the market. Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include:

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance.

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape.

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard sufaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction.

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Has A Heavy Duty KNIGHT

One day in 1949, a friend told Stan Knight, "I wish someone would make a spreader that would not break down with frozen manure." That challenge to the founder of Knight Manufacturing led to the Knight heavy duty manure spreaders that were soon on the market. The common focus of Knight spreaders to this day is that they are simple and rugged and designed to give many years of service.

RENT ? ? ?

FARMERS ARE LOYAL TO HOOBER'S SALESMEN BECAUSE THEY ARE EXPERTS AT TAILORING EQUIPMENT PACKAGES

RENT

The rental program Hoober has come up with works out real well for me It's been very cost effective because I don't have to put a lot of cash at risk Plus I don't have to worry about having a large machinery payment hanging over my head Anytime you get a dealer like Hoober who's willing to work with you it makes life a little easier

Roger Woolf
Washington New Jersey

LEASE

' For us leasing is really worthwhile and important from the maintenance standpoint because we have a lot of acres to cover Everything's under warranty and we don't have any real problems anyway since the equipment is new And when it comes to service Hoober couldn't be any better

Donald Lippy - Lippy Bros Farms
Hampstead MD

OWN

"I made the decision to buy a new MX 170 from Hoober for two simple reasons One I like Case IH tractors I like them because of their reliability and second I bought it because Hoober backs it with top-notch service For my operation, that is the ideal combination

Glen Engle - Silver Maple Farms
Cochranville, PA

WHAT FACTORS DO YOU NEED TO CONSIDER IN DECIDING WHETHER TO:

RENT • LEASE • OWN

- Job You Need To Accomplish
- Cash-Flow Considerations
- Short-Term Needs
- Long-Term Plans
- Possible Tax Advantages

Farmers Should Beware Of Silo Fire Danger

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dry weather in many parts of Pennsylvania may be causing an increased risk of tower silo fires from a lack of proper forage moisture content and/or from poor fermentation of silage, which in turn could lead to the production of greater amounts of volatile gas that can ignite a silo fire.

Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering and a farm safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, explains that the moisture content for forages stored in a silo should be between 45 and 65 percent. If the moisture content falls below the 45-percent level, fire risk increases. He adds that several gases, including hydrogen and methane, are by-products of fermenting silage.

"If excess gases are present, they could burst into flames if exposed to a source of ignition, such as static electricity or sparks created during the loading or blowing of silage," Murphy said. "Other potential ignition sources are barn lights or other electrical equipment near or at the base of unloading chutes."

Murphy says farmers should take the following precautions to help reduce the risk of silo fires:

- Test the moisture of the forage being ensiled.
- Water down silo unloading chutes.
- Provide plenty of ventilation around the silo, especially at loading areas and up chutes. "Use a barn fan to keep extra oxygen moving up the silo chute," advised Murphy. "This helps prevent the generation of excess silo gases and dilutes the gases present, keeping them from reaching explosive concentrations."
- Clean out chaff and other debris from the silo chute and from the rungs or frame of chute doors.

Murphy said farmers also must remember that besides the potential fire hazard, silo gases are toxic, especially in the first 48 to 60 hours after filling. "If you must enter the silo within the first 48 to 60 hours, protect yourself by wearing a self-contained breathing apparatus," he said. "If you don't have access to one, stay out of the silo."

"Dangerous levels of silo gas may be present for an additional two to three weeks," he said. "To enter without a self-contained breathing apparatus during this period, ventilate with the silo blower. Open all doors, run the blower fan for 20 minutes and leave it running while you are in the silo. Enter only after you have put on a respirator for toxic dust, and have a second person with you to assist in an emergency.

Eby Unveils New Punch Panel Livestock Trailer

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — M.H. Eby Inc. has introduced a new punch panel aluminum livestock trailer.

Named "Bull Ride™," the revolutionary design was unveiled to enthusiastic audiences at the recent Mid-America Truck Show.

Bull Ride features .075-inch thick aluminum side sheets with double embossed ventilation holes that are large and plentiful to provide ample air flow. The side sheets are riveted on 3-inch centers to both legs of extruded aluminum hat-post uprights, giving Bull-Ride the strongest sides in the industry.

Eby's new design conserves weight and includes these standard specifications that continue to reinforce the company's reputation for strength, quality, and durability:

- 8-inch deep extruded aluminum suspension beams.
- Aerodynamic front end with bull nose and adjustable air vents.
- Extruded aluminum rear frame with 12-inch center post, left side rollup door, and corrugated right side panel.
- Hard alloy, high-button aluminum floors with longitudinal ridges.
- Heavy duty 3-inch aluminum I-beam crossmembers on 12-inch centers.
- Formed and punched divide gates on each deck with double center beam construction for superior strength.
- Smooth aluminum interior walls to minimize animal bruising and facilitate cleaning.
- Premium quality running gear: Meritor 22,500# axles, Bridgestone radial tires, and extended life brakes.

Bull Ride™ models are available in 48-foot - 53-foot lengths and both 102-inches and 96-inch widths.

New Holland Offers Grain Belt Headers For Self-Propelled Windrowers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The efficient cutting and smooth feeding of a combine draper header is available for New Holland self-propelled windrowers.

The new Model 994S Grain Belt draper headers fit the HW series of New Holland Speedrowers® as well as previous Models 2450 and 2550.

Draper headers are ideal for swathing grains, cereals, and specialty crops. The large-diameter bat reel (or optional pickup reel) provides superior cleaning while the low-profile cutterbar and lateral float system allows cutting of the shortest cereal or specialty crops.

The floating feed auger and the extra-long retractable fingers combined with the extra-wide, single center belt result in high-capacity harvesting. The auger is located under the feeding housing to keep grain from twisting or tangling, even in tough conditions.

New Holland Model 994S Grain Belt headers feature strong draper belts which feed evenly across the entire width of the header for increased capacity. Belt speed is easily adjusted using flow control and flow divider valves mounted on top of the header.

The smooth, reliable cutting system is hydraulically driven, and designed for long life with low maintenance. The hydraulic system is self-contained, eliminating pulleys and chains.

All models offer both single- and double-knife drives, and include a choice of large-diameter bat reels, UII pickup reel or HCC pickup wheel. Other options include low-friction skid plates, header transport, castoring gauge wheels, remote canvas, speed control, hay guard and cross auger kit

NC+ Introduces "Plus Boxes" For Bulk Seed Corn Delivery

LINCOLN, Neb. — NC+ has announced that customers will be able to receive bulk orders of hybrid seed corn in the new "Plus Box" center flow gravity containers for the 2000 delivery season.

Plus Boxes are compatible with and have the same features as containers used in the seed industry.

According to NC+ Operations Manager Charlie Harrold, "Plus Boxes allow us to offer our customers the very best in convenience, safety and durability when it comes to handling bulk seed corn. These containers are reusable so they eliminate the waste and disposal costs of jumbo bags."

The Plus Boxes will hold 2,500 pounds (50 traditional units) of seed corn. The containers are easy to unload and move with the use of a forklift. They have a built-in pallet, so they eliminate the storage and disposal problems associated with traditional wood pallets.

While the center flow gravity design on the Plus Box allows for a maximum emptying speed of 30 seconds, the operator can safely adjust the flow with the side-mounted sliding door.

Manufactured from high-density polyethylene plastic for durability, the Plus Box resists impact and protects the seed from moisture and rodents. They can be stacked four-high when full, and nest when empty for optimal space utilization.

Hay Creek Fall Festival Sept. 10-12

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Are you looking for an outing for the whole family? Don't settle for just another day out. Take the kids to a place that surpasses other festivals in educational value and fun, and treat yourself to a cultivating experience.

The Hay Creek Fall Festival scheduled Sept. 10-12 at the Historic Joanna Furnace, a remnant of Berks County's once-thriving iron industry and supporting community. The area is rich with iron ore, abundant with woodland for charcoal, limestone, and contains waterways that are an excellent power source.

A product of its era, the furnace came about from the efforts of only a few men. A few men grew to be a whole community, now evidenced in the many buildings on site at the festival.

There is the casting house where items such as cannon balls, sash and gate weights, hollowware and box stoves were once made. The massive charcoal storage building houses many of the site's artifacts and is the showcase of Joanna Furnace restoration. As long as

When a group of 1,200 volunteers come together and commit themselves to authenticity and excellence, the result is The Hay Creek Fall Festival. Buildings, people, crafts and food are recreated to provide one memorable experience.

Hay Creek draws festival-goers, the proceeds will go toward this cause.

This year Hay Creek undertakes the restoration of the casting house walls, which need to be stabilized and require deep tuck pointing by masons. The third arch within the furnace itself is another site of restoration this year.

At The Hay Creek Fall Festival, on secluded 18th-century surroundings you'll catch a whiff of hickory fires and coal-fired steam engines. Take in the sweet blend of dulcimer and strolling folk musicians. In the Early American craft and food sections sights, sounds and smells overwhelm. There "members of the historic plantation community" demonstrate and interpret in period garb. At the Blacksmith shop watch the steam rise and hot iron sizzle. Wait for your soup as it froths in big iron kettles and grab an apple fritter hot off the iron grill.

The festival committee takes its crafts very seriously. That is why Hay Creek has hand-picked 150 craft exhibits to suit everyone's taste. Whether it's Early American crafts made the traditional way such as hand-blown glass, spider lace or Windsor chairs, or modern crafts such as dried flowers, jewelry or stained glass, Hay Creek promises a shoppers' paradise.

Yield Monitors Create On, Off Farm Profit Opportunities

DES MOINES, Iowa — Long-term use of yield monitors and other precision farming practices will make good growers better by giving them new information management tools for their farm operations.

So said, Tom Doerge, precision-farming agronomist with Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., who has studied precision technologies for the last two-and-a-half years.

Recent surveys suggest that only 13 percent of all Corn Belt farmers own yield monitors or use variable-rate input application equipment. But initial concerns about equipment costs and training and uncertainty about economic returns are disappearing as growers begin to understand the potential benefits of these technologies.

"Yield monitors offer growers in-field, real-time benefits at harvest," said Doerge. "For example, growers can collect yield results without disrupting their harvest operations. In addition, they can make on-the-go moisture decisions as to whether it would be more economical to dry grain on-site, or take it directly to the elevator for immediate storage. They also can use yield data to capture early season contracts or marketing premiums by getting yield results immediately from the first-harvested fields and evaluating if they will have enough grain to satisfy existing contracts or obtain additional contracts at a more favorable price."

But the benefits don't stop there. In fact, Doerge wants growers to know that information collected from a yield monitor can make a difference both on and off the farm throughout the year.

Growers can create detailed field and load yield summaries, evaluate the cost of weed control, study the effects of drainage challenges, check hybrid consistency within a field, or develop a historical spatial database for each of their fields.

"With a proven yield history and database in hand, growers may be able to command a higher price when selling farmland," Doerge said. "Also, records they create can help them enhance fair land rental agreements, provide 'traceback' information for food safety officials, or document environmental compliance. There are many opportunities.

There may be no better way to keep detailed field-by-field records than with a yield monitor, but good data must be collected over time. Growers can't measure the results of a yield monitor program at the end of one season like they can with variable-rate technologies. Rather they should understand that benefits accumulate over the long term.

Growers who invest in yield monitors must be willing to tackle a learning curve, especially if they plan to do their own mapping and analysis. They also must have the proper equipment to store large data files, and they should be willing to develop a historical spatial database that includes soil survey maps, electrical conductivity maps, aerial images and other information.

It's a lot of work, but Doerge believes growers will embrace precision farming technologies, especially as equipment becomes more integrated, measure more traits than just yield and offers even more farm management information. A growing network of private consultants and mapping professionals are available to help growers get the most value from their precision farming investments.

Not all metal roofs are created equal

A high % of metal roofing and siding has
- rust streaks
- rust at edges
- lap leaks
- nail leaks
- cracked paint
- bend rust
- scratch rust
- bends and buckles
- paint that fades, peels

Not so with Everlast II metal roofing!
- Everlast II is heat formed, less paint cracks
- is galvanized heavier, like old times
- doesn't rust as easy, more galvanizing
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder
- won't bend or buckle as easy, better design
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible
- nails screws seal better, ribs fit tight to head
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint
- priced about the same or less

Double dipped galvanized proven best for animal confinement
Standing seam is ideal for houses
Everlast II is excellent for houses and barns.

The Professionals In Farm Real Estate Service

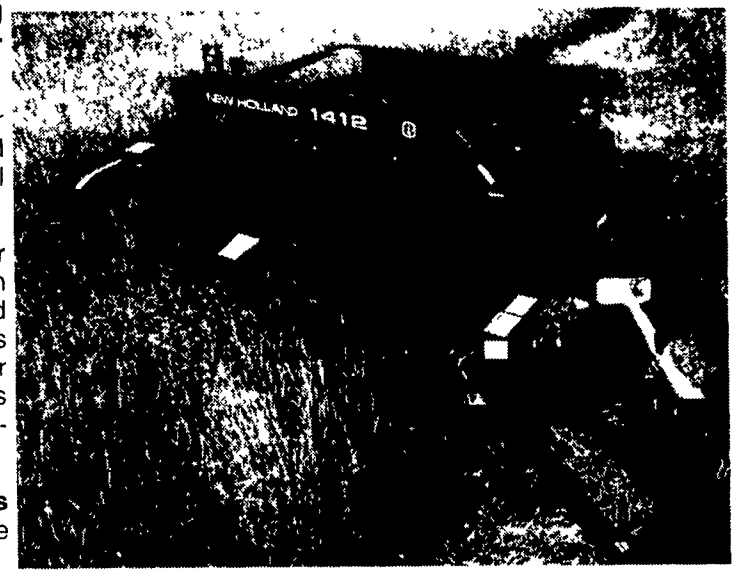
NEW Model 1412 Discbine Disc Mower With Flail Conditioner

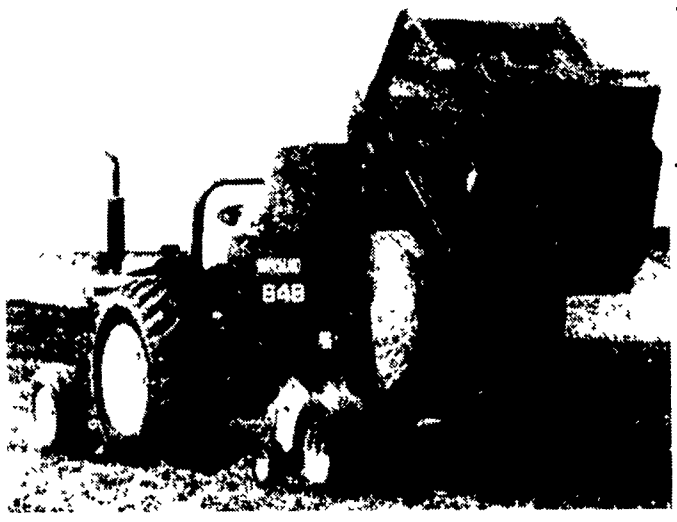
Fast, Trouble-Free Cutting... and Flail Conditioning For Faster Drydown.

Now, get New Holland's popular Discbine® disc-cutting technology teamed with fast-drying flail conditioning. It's all built into the new Model 1412

The "1412" has an eight-disc modular Discbine cutterbar for cutting through the toughest, heaviest crop quickly and cleanly The modular cutterbar features individual disc modules with sealed gear cases and independent alloy drive shafts - it's the secret to fast, easy and inexpensive cutterbar servicing.

Flail conditioning system promotes faster drydown so you're able to save valuable time and bale much sooner





Model 648 Silage Special 4'x5'

Strength and durability are built into every New Holland Roll-Belt™ round baler. Larger chain idler springs to maintain proper tension, beefier bearings for follower rolls and drive rolls, heavy-duty cam-follower bearings in wide pickups, stronger pickup lift cranks, heavy-duty wheel hubs, and long-lasting curved pickup tines - they're just some of the features we've included to make Roll-Belt balers stand the test of time.

Model 570 14x18 Baler

The Model 570 handles high-capacity crops with a 65-inch wide Super-Sweep pickup. Knotters or twisters are gear driven for consistent trouble-free tying.

NEW HOLLAND 195 SPREADER

The Most Reliable, Most Durable Spreader You Can Buy

New Holland box spreaders are the best-selling spreaders in the industry - and for good reason. Known as "Strong boxes," New Holland box spreaders are engineered to perform and built to last. They have the toughest floors and sides of any spreader available. And they're made of special steels that are more corrosion-resistant and stronger than ordinary steels.

Every new Holland 'strong box' comes with Bonded Protection

Here's something you won't find with competitive models - a no-nonsense, no-hassle guarantee on the sides and floors. It's standard on every New Holland box spreader.

B37P Round Bale Wrapper

Expand your forage production system with a New Holland round bale wrapper. By adding a round bale wrapper to your current haying system, you can put up high-quality forage at a fraction of the cost of traditional silage systems.

Wrapping adapts well to any haying system. Both twine-tied and net-wrapped bales can be wrapped for silage Along with being a low-cost silage investment, wrapping eliminates a need for shed storage space for your hay.
